Tunnel Bargain Basement

Every Day Women Are Realizing More and More the Difference Between the Tunnel Bargain Basement and the Ordinary Bargain Store—

In the ordinary Bargain Store goods can stay as long as the management wishes—consequently, there being no restrictions, goods other than Bargains can be bought and sold. But here's a Store with an Automatic System of Reducing Prices that holds it firmly to a policy of Not Buying and Not Selling Anything but Bargains. If in any chance any pieces remain end of 2nd week—Reduction 25%. If by chance any pieces remain end of 3rd week—Reduction 50%. If any pieces remain end of 4th week—Reduction 75%. If, even after these reductions, any pieces should remain end of 5th week—THEY WILL BE GIVEN AWAY.

St. Louis Nationals Take First Game from Brooklyn.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 21.—The Cardinals beat the Trolley Dodgers in their opening game of the season in the tenth inning, when Evans with the bases congested, singled prettily to deep right, sending Zacher home with the Card.'s fourth run and winning run. The game, which was witnessed by a record-breaking Saturday crowd of 17,000 persons, viewed what was probably the best and most hard-fought game played on Robison's diamond in several years. The Dodgers' star box man, Nap Rucker, was in the box for the visitors. The famous southpaw worked grandly up to the seventh. In this essay he weakened a bit, and the locals scored their first run.

In the ninth the Cardinals tied up the score on three safe drives and a base on balls. In the tenth the locals found Rucker's shoots easy to hit. Zacher singled to right, and Oakes followed with a double through second. Koney was passed, filling the sacks. Evans won the contest with a dream of a perfect rap to left. The Cardinals hammered out nine telling hits, and besides supported their hoxmen in perfect style. Corridon was hit hard in the fourth, fifth and sixth only. The score:

Lake Wants to Trade.

Manager Lake is trying to make a deal with the Cincinnati club, he gets it, to give Griffin one of his pitchers for a good outfielder. He wants Paskert, but Griffin will offer him only McGuire or Miller. Lake says he intends to build up his team at the expense of his pitching staff, but not in such a manner as to weaken his infield department and make the team go along without proper pitching strength. Griffin wants Mattern, but Lake will not make a trade involving his star left-hander unless he gets a good pitcher and a first-class outfielder in exchange.

JEANNETTE MEETS MORRIS.

East Boston Boy Promised, Likely to Box Well.

The main bout at the Armory Club on Tuesday night is between Joe Jeannette, the New York colored heavyweight, who has recently been making good in Paris and England, and Andrew Morris of East Boston, the promising local lad who many believe is destined to make a mark in the ring circles.

Morris has improved since his last appearance in this city. He is working daily with the clever Sullivan twins, and he has developed good footwork. His improvement was shown at Brockton, where he defeated Jack Fitzgerald, the Philadelphia "Smoky" and Al Kubiak, and he showed them up in a fashion which showed that he is one of the further honors in the roped arena.

Jeannette is the one man in the country whom Sam Langford dislikes to meet, although Langford is willing to "do" the remainder of the field well remembered.

There are five more contests preceding the main bout, and each one promises action. In the opening will appear Tom Kelly and Young Coveleski, who will have his hands full trying to overcome a new Italian comer, Young Joseph.

A middleweight encagement of light rounds between Henry Hall and Tim Sullivan of Everett last meeting ended in a verdict for Sullivan, but both were dissatisfied and claimed superiority. They will be matched second bout.

In the semi-windup bout Eddie Curry of South Boston meets Kid Betts of Albany, N. Y., both boys being clouting lads of the kids of his weight. Curry is a hard hitter, while a new Italian comer, Jack Fallenberg, and the two left handers, Lang and Mitchell.

The veteran manager Jim McGuire is having his troubles, as the team is shy on batting, which has been the big cause of the team's defeats.

He has shifted and shifted his men but still the batting is poor, and if this keeps continues when they strike this place they will be sent home to the woods.

Cy Young to Pitch Here.

The Naps have used their best right handers over in New York, as McGuire's intention is to put his two pitching aces against the Red Sox and also let Cy Young pitch one of the contests.

Uncle Cyrus has been laid up with sickness, and has not been used on the Eastern trip of the team, but he will make a flip flop to get well when the team arrives, as he knows the ovation that awaits him here, though Cy was horribly treated when he first appeared in Boston, he always willing to try again.

Next Sunday finds the sensational Athletics come here again for a double header, playing on the holiday, May 30. The Red Sox are now in the limelight and will keep them, than early in the Spring, and still are leading out of victories the Quakers hold over them.

To-day the Chicago team plays the Providence Greys at Rocky Point, and Duffy is said to receive some more flattering from his many friends down that way.

ATHLETICS TRIM TIGERS.

Jennings' Bunch Blows Up In Seventh and Loses, 7 to 4.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—"The Athletics are lucky, but I guess we are all lucky at times and that evens it up." Such was the remark made by Hugh Jennings, manager of Detroit's team, previous to the start of the final game of the series between Detroit and Philadelphia at Shibe Park.

That his remark was a true one was shown by the fact that the Athletics won out when the Tigers "blew up" in the Seventh.

Seventeen thousand people saw the White Elephants trample the Tigers in the mud 7 to 4, making the series two out of three, one of these people being Ban Johnson, president of the league. The score:

WILD PITCH COSTLY.

St. Louis Wins From Washington When Groom Goes in Air.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21.—Washington handily knocked Gilhooley out of the box in the second inning to-day piling up three hits and two runs. They beat by 3 to 2. He was succeeded by Bailey, who held the Nationals safe for the rest of the game. St. Louis won because of a smash through Elberfeld and a wild pitch by Groom, who was remarkably steady up to the eighth. Stone singled, Harper sacrificed, Wallace singled Stone to third and Groom's pitch sent Stone home. Mitchell's catch of Griggs's terrific fly was a real sensation. Score:

Thirty Players Used in Great Battle Which Cleveland Loses.

NEW YORK, May 21.—In a game of fifteen innings, in which thirty players participated, the New Yorks defeated the Cleveland team to-day before a crowd of 25,000, which packed the grounds, yelled and went wild over the finish. The game was not won until the fifteenth inning, with only one out in the fifteenth inning. Score:

APPEAL TO TAFT.

Presbyterian Church Plans Concerted Action Against Fight.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 21.—An appeal to President Taft to stop the Jeffries-Johnson championship heavyweight fight scheduled to be held in San Francisco on July 4 is being planned by the delegates to the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in session here today. The California delegation has prepared a request for such action.

The church people, working in unison with the ministers throughout California who have protested against the fight, plan concerted action as a result of the announcement made by San Francisco officials county authorities that the fight can not be legally stopped. This proposed national protest will also, according to the present plans, embody the opinion of the clergy and religious organizations in other sections of the country that have demanded the calling off of the contest.

MEMSIC BREAKS ARM.

Lew Powell Wins Fight in Fourth Round.

LOS ANGELES, May 21.—George Memsic broke the large bone of his right arm two inches above the wrist by swinging it against Lew Powell's elbow during the fourth round of their scheduled twenty-five-round contest before the Pacific A. C. this afternoon. The men had gone to their corners at the finish of this round, when Memsic called out to Referee Eyton, "My arm is broken. I cannot go any further."

An examination by the club's physician confirmed the fighter's statement, and Eyton awarded the fight to Powell.

Up to the time of the unfortunate accident Memsic, if anything, had a shade the better of fast and scientific milling that had featured each of the four rounds.

ZBYZKO COMES HERE.

Giant Pole Wrestler to Be Seen at Mechanics Hall.

CHICAGO, May 21, 1910.—Zbyzko, the giant Polander who is matched to wrestle Frank Gotch here for the world's championship, will make his appearance in Boston on June, prior to sailing for home under the auspices of the Polish National Alliance. Part of the proceeds it is understood are to be used for the building fund of local churches.

Mechanics Hall has been secured for the event, which will be in the nature of an athletic carnival, with Zbyzko meeting the best available heavyweight wrestler in a match to a finish. Other athletic events will be featured.

HARVARD CREWS ARE HENLEY WINNERS

Both Crimson Eights Capture Events in Fierce Struggle on the Schuylkill.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—The eighth annual regatta of the American Rowing Association was rowed on the Schuylkill this afternoon and from a racing standpoint was the most successful in the history of the association. The threatening weather kept down the attendance, but the three thousand spectators saw some stirring finishes.

Probably the best event of the day was the Junior Collegiate eights, in which Harvard defeated nine crews ahead of Columbia and Pennsylvania, who rowed a dead heat for second place. The Quakers held the lead for most of the distance but the Crimson crew never faltered and gradually drew up and passed the lead and Blue. Columbia then passed Pennsylvania, but the latter made a gallant spurt and managed to creep up to even terms in the last stroke.

The eight-oared freshman race had Harvard, Georgetown and the Wanderers of Philadelphia as contestants and the crimson crew scored another victory. Harvard got the lead at the start, but was caught by Georgetown after going a half mile. They it was a dingdong struggle to the finish, the superior watermanship of the crimson eight landing the victory for them by a scant half length. The Georgetown crew gave their conquerors a rousing cheer after the race was finished.

The eight-oared shells—Won by Harvard Univ. crew; second, Georgetown; third, Wanderers of Philadelphia. Time—10m. 7 4-5s.

EXETER'S FINE TEAM EASILY WINS MEET FROM HER RIVALS

The schoolboy athletes of Exeter took sweet revenge on their deadly rivals in track sports, Worcester Academy, by winning the annual Harvard interscholastic track meet at the Harvard Stadium yesterday afternoon by a grand total of 48½ points. The best Worcester was able to do was 29½ points while Andover with only 15 points was sadly in the rear. Last year the Worcester aggregation was invincible in field event men and squeezed out a victory over Exeter by a small margin but this year Exeter beat the island city schoolboys in their own department, scoring 13½ points in the field events to Worcester's 12½ tallies.

The other schools who captured points in the meet were Brookline High School, six points; Hopedale High School, three points, and Roxbury Latin School, one point. Nineteen schools were represented and there were 147 entries.

Besides those who won points for schools represented were: Boston College High, Boston Latin, Dedham High, English High, High School of Commerce, Lawrence High, Milton High, Mount Hermon High, Mechanic Arts High, Natick High, Ridge Manual Training School and Wakefield High.

The meet was held under the greatest possible disadvantages. A heavy sleet beat down on the waiting athletes chilling them to the bone and transforming the track into a soft and spongy consistency. Considering the conditions it was small wonder that no track records were broken and but one, the half-mile run was equaled.

One New Record Made.

In the half-mile run W. G. Bingham of Exeter, who last year broke the interscholastic record with a time of 1 minute 59 seconds, duplicated his feat on a slower and much heavier track. If the track had been in good condition, Bingham would undoubtedly have smashed his old mark.

The only record which was broken during the meet was in the 12-pound hammer throw in which Howard of Worcester, who broke the record last year in this event with a throw of 163 feet 10 inches was entered. Howard was in apple condition and far and away the best of the field and while men on the turf Four men qualified in this event, A. C. Bartlett, L. D. Howard and L. A. Whitney, all of Worcester Academy and O. G. Kirkpatrick of Exeter. Howard won the event with a throw of 164 feet 4 inches, establishing a new record.

The work of W. H. Worthington of Exeter in the running broad jump was nearly as remarkable. We made a jump of 22 feet 3½ inch, and then tried to establish a new record, the previous figure in this event being 22 feet 1½ inch, made by D. R. Ayres of the Roxbury Latin School in 1901. Worthington failed to better the mark made in the regular competition.

Exeter won five firsts, three second places and five third places. Worcester Academy won two firsts, two second places and two third places. Andover secured one first and two second places in the high jump Exeter, Worcester and Brookline high all tied, drifting for the points equally. In the pole-vault also there was a split in Andover, Worcester and Exeter fighting for the first two places, and Exeter defeating Worcester Academy to split the lone point for third place.

Exeter Takes Hurdles.

The 120-yard hurdles was the first event on the card. A. E. Gillis of Exeter got the jump on the rest of the field in the first heat and crossed the tape well ahead of S. W. R. Eames of Andover. In the second heat the runners had difficulty in clearing the hurdles on account of the fact that the soft ground afforded little support. C. Pendall, Jr., of Exeter managed to have the trick of keeping his feet and clearing easily and took the first heat by a lead of about five yards over H. C. Martin of Andover. The time of the heats was very slow, being 17 seconds and 18 2-5 seconds respectively.

The final heat, however, resulted in a fitting little fight between Gillis of Exeter and Eames of Andover. Eames caught the lead and ran easily, but Gillis made a sudden spurt within a half a dozen yards of the tape, finishing in a dead heat. The time made by Gillis was remarkable for the rainy, heavy 16 1-5 seconds, just three-fifths of a second behind the intercollegiate record of 16 seconds made by W. F. Mcculloch of Worcester Academy in this event in 1904.

Cornell Wins Dash.

The 100-yard dash brought out a large field of short distance men. Among those who were entered in this event were: P. H. Hardwick of the English High; R. Prout of Quincy High, and I. T. Howe of English High. All of these three were weeded out in the trial heats. W. Blackmer of Worcester Academy and T. H. Cornell of Exeter fought hard for first place in the initial heat, Blackmer winning, but in the second heat F. Burns of Exeter walked away easily from H. Mitchell of Worcester Academy, and H. W. Cole of Worcester Academy left J. C. Courtney to the consolation of second place in the third heat of this event.

Then the funny thing happened. Both the Exeter men who had barely qualified in the heats froze out their competitors from Worcester in the final heat. Cornell, Burns and Courtney, as if by mutual consent, took the lead simultaneously and kept about abreast during the final dash, winning first, second and third in the order named. The Worcester runners seemed to have used up considerable of their reserve strength in the trials and were left well in the rear in the final.

Big Surprise in Mile.

The one mile run was one of the most interesting events on the card and brought out a brace of twelve distance men. Among the men who toed the tape were H. Johnson of Brookline High, F. F. Stone, Brookline High, R. Boyd of Exeter, I. D. Mortensie of Exeter, G. Shedd, Exeter; E. H. Clark, Dedham High; E. Rose worth, Worcester Academy; R. A. Sadler, Hopedale High; H. Benson, Dedham High and F. R. Marcean, Quincy High.

Marcean of Quincy immediately took the lead and ran strongly, holding it up to the end of the third lap. The rest of the field, with the exception of H. Johnson of the Brookline High, who dropped back, kept well bunched at the heels up to the final lap, when the less nimble-toes ran in 2 minutes 15 seconds. The moment Marcean crossed the tape on the final stretch, E. Rosworth, who had been following into Marcean's steps, tried to pass him. The best he could do was get his head neck and neck with Marcean for the first part of the last lap, and then he was transferred to another runner, R. A. Sadler, who had been trailing well in the rear.

Passing him after man, he suddenly put on a forward overtook Marcean and then went after Marcean. Marcean by this time was nearly exhausted and setting the pace during almost the entire mile, but the Quincy runner had plenty of fight left, and the finish was a battle royal. Sadler had more strength stored up, and gathering himself, made one supreme effort, crossing the tape ahead of Marcean by a few inches. The time of the mile, 4 minutes 34 2-5 seconds, was not remarkable but fair considering the track.

Equals Former Mark.

By far the classiest of the track events was the half mile in which W. G. Bingham, holder of the record in this event made in last year's interscholastic with a time of one minute fifty-nine seconds and matters his own way. There were eleven entries in this event, Bingham held the lead from the beginning and was never once passed, although Hayes of Andover made a fine try to shake his rival. L. J. Rolette of Exeter ran with the sleepy until the final dash when he climbed up carefully and made a splendid spurt which gave him third place. The feature of this run was the equalling of the record time.

The surprise of the 220-yard dashes was the shutting out of A. E. Gillis of Exeter who qualified. Eames of Andover beat out his competitor and Sibley of Worcester and Crandall of Exeter gathered in the second and third places.

The Cornell-Burns-Courtney trio which captured the 100-yard dash, duplicated their feat in the 220-yard dash, sending Cole Blackmer of Worcester and Tree of Andover to the discard.

Wins Quarter Mile By Foot.

F. P. O'Hara acted as pacemaker of the eleven men who clawed the cinders in the quarter mile but he could not maintain a winning speed. C. F. W. O'Connor of Worcester Academy and T. H. Guething of Exeter who hung well back spurted at the same time and easily passed O'Hara. It was a close finish between O'Connor and Guething, O'Connor winning by about half a yard.

L. A. Whitney of Worcester Academy was frozen out of the shot put by Burt Howard of Worcester, D. Howard of Worcester and Macdougall of Exeter. Worcester Academy took no chances in this event but Macdougall of Exeter proved a dark horse, the latter's winning distance being 42 feet 7¼ inches.

The running high jump was the closest of the field events, J. E. Macdougall of Exeter, J. O. Johnstone of Brookline High and A. E. Bartlett of Worcester being unable to clear the jump over 5 feet 5¾ inches. After the regular competition, however, Macdougall made a few more tries for the medal capturing it with a jump of 5 feet 6 inches.

In the hammer throw L. D. Howard of Worcester broke all to cinders his old record. In the first try he made 164 feet 4 inches, the second try 164 feet 5½ inches and in the third try the new figure of 164 feet 4 inches.

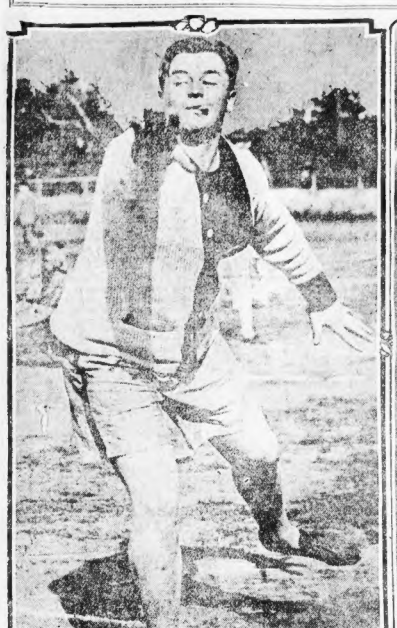
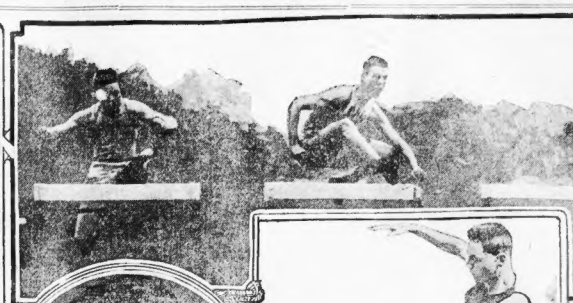
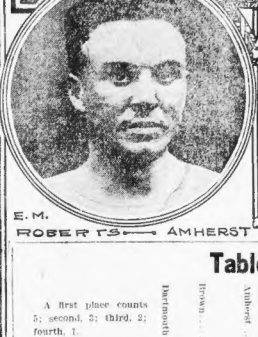
BOWDOIN PUSHES DARTMOUTH TEAM TO THE VERY LAST EVENT

PROMINENT ATHLETES AT THE NEW ENGLAND INTERCOLLEGIATE MEET ON TECH FIELD







E. M. ROBERTS—AMHERST

E. R. PALMER—DARTMOUTH

J. P. WENDELL OF WESLEYAN WINNING, J. D. FISH OF WILLIAMS AND R. W. J. PEASE OF M. I. T. 3RD.

COLBATH'S SUPERB RUNNING BIG FEATURE OF THE MEET

Dartmouth carried off the championship pionship was close enough to keep every in the intercollegiate finals on Tech field yesterday afternoon, after the closest and most brilliant windup that has probably ever put the climax to one of the intercollegiate association's meets. Dartmouth nosed out Bowdoin, in the very last event, the discus throw, by two-thirds of a point, scoring 29 6-8 points, in the entire fourteen events to Bowdoin's 26 1-12. Wesleyan was a fairly close third with 22 points.

It was one of the most glorious exhibitions Tech field has ever seen, considering an incessant drizzle of rain that rendered the field muddy and the track heavy, and bade fair to dampen the ardor of college athletes and spectators.

One intercollegiate and three Tech field record went by the board, new marks being put up for the half-mile, mile and two-mile runs. Had the weather been half fair, experts say, there would have been no telling of the number of records that would have been left in the shade.

The new intercollegiate record for pole vault was set up by Holdman of Dartmouth, who despite the slippery condition of his uniform, cleared 11 feet, 8½ inches, a new mark. The old record was 11 feet, 6¾ inches, made by Hurlburt of Wesleyan in 1905.

Colbath's Great Work.

Colbath, Bowdoin's mainstay, who was one of the cleverest of the many good ones to don running shoes yesterday, starred in the two lower distance events, putting up new records for the mile and two mile. Rounding the quarter-mile course with the precision of a machine, Colbath finished in 4 minutes, 27 3-5 seconds, just 3-4-5 seconds better than the previous mark for the mile event for the field. Colbath again made a record when he finished one of the two miles in 9 minutes, 50 1-5 seconds, 1 3-5 seconds better than the previous high mark for Tech field.

Baxter of Dartmouth, one of Coach Hillman's proteges, set up the new standard for the 880 yard run, with 2 minutes, 1 3-5 seconds to his credit for the half mile, 4-5 of a second better than the previous record.

Tattersall and through the meet was a topnotcher, for not only were the contests in the very best of condition, on both field and track, but the race for the championship was close enough to keep every enthusiast on the field until the last event had been completed. The discus throw was the final event of the program, and not until this time, Bowdoin was leading Dartmouth by a third of a point. The points stood 25 6-8 for the green to 26 1-12 for Bowdoin.

The Maine contingent of rooters fairly went wild. They howled over again and again. But the end was not yet.

Here, at the very last, when the prospect was as gloomy as the weather, came Dartmouth's one supreme chance to win. Bowdoin hadn't qualified a man to hurl the discus, while Dartmouth out of the half dozen entered in the event had managed to squeeze Lovejoy by.

Plainly with Bowdoin in the lead, Dartmouth's sole opportunity centered in Lovejoy. And Lovejoy made good, but by a scant margin. He found a berth at fourth place, which gave Dartmouth the point it needed.

Dartmouth Sixth Win.

Briefly, that is how Dartmouth carried the day yesterday, winning a splendid victory, and carrying off its sixth consecutive championship, in the race for the new fifteen year cup. That the Greene's margin was not arger than a fraction was probably due to the fact that Sherman's leg went back on him Friday, which kept him out of the events on the track.

The crowd was early on the field, and by the time the pistol cracked to indicate the preliminary heats in the 100-yard dash, the afternoon's eye-opener, the grandstand was packed. In all, about 1,500 spectators, with a fair sprinkling of women, witnessed the games and thoroughly enjoyed them, judging by the great applause they handed out to the college athletes.

A downpour of rain rendered the afternoon hungry and uncomfortable, and would have effectually brighted the ardor of any ordinary meet. A driving wind wafted the rain drops underneath the grandstand covering, so that scores were soaked to the skin.

Few would have been found to predict record-fairly good time, for the track events, before 2.15 o'clock. The track had the appearance of being extremely heavy, as the appearance of being extremely heavy, as sufficient to handicap the most fleet-footed of the collegians. The field was muddy for the distances, and even Holdman of Dartmouth, and the others delivered the goods. Holdman cleared 11 feet, 8½ inches of the field record, and on a day like yesterday it was a feature.

Five Colleges in Race.

Five members of the intercollegiate association were well forward in the running events, Tufts, Worcester Tech, Amherst and Bowdoin, of course, Wesleyan, Amherst and Williams, Wesleyan surprised them all and had a fair chance more than some of its competitors who had been expected to make a better showing. Amherst made a splendid spurt in the short distance events, and the encouragement given by the special band brought out by the Amherst rooters to play the college airs should have ordered a continuance of the good work. But it was not to be so, and even Wesleyan with 23 points, passed by the purple, which scored 19 1-3 points. Williams came in for 17 points.

Frank Kaaaly's Red and Gray bunch from Massachusetts Tech failed to come up to expectations, and quit with an even dozen of points. Vermont and Maine each scored even, Worcester Tech 5, Brown 4 6-8, Tufts 2, Trinity 2, Colby 1 1-12 and Bates 1 point. The discus throw was the final event of the program, and not until this time, Bowdoin was leading Dartmouth by a third of a point. The points stood 25 6-8 for the green to 26 1-12 for Bowdoin.

Some Good Jumping.

Gatterson made a good mark in the running broad jump, 23 feet 8¾ inch, a mark he had made in the preliminaries, which was protested as a cloth tape was used. The correct jump Friday for Gatterson was 23 feet and five-eighths of an inch. Roberts of Amherst came second, 22 feet 5 inches. McFarland of Bowdoin won third, 21 feet 2 inches, and J. Marks, Dartmouth's star, fourth, 21 feet 1 inches.

Holdman of Dartmouth, winning the pole vault, at height of 11 feet 8¾ inches, Jenks, a wearer of the green, cleared 11 feet, also a record. Wessels of Trinity, 11 feet, three were tied for fourth, Miles of Amherst, Deming of Bowdoin and Herrick of Colby, with 10 feet 6 inches. Holdman, a fine all-round man, gained great applause by his sterling performance with the pole.

Clough scored the only points Worcester Tech won, by his superb work in the shot put. Clough sent the 16th, weight 40 ft. 6 inches. Mason of Williams won second, 40 feet 11 inches. Tobin of Dartmouth, third, 40 feet 7¾ inches, and Parkinson of Wesleyan was fourth, 39 feet 8 inches.

Warren of Bowdoin featured in the hammer throw, with a heave of 136 feet, 5 inches. Crosby, another Bowdoin man, second, 127 feet, 2 inches. W. Marden of Dartmouth was third, 125 feet, 9 inches, and Lewis of Dartmouth was fourth, 121 feet 7½ inches.

In the last event, Parkinson won the discus throw, 115 feet; Douglas of Tufts second, 111 feet, 9½ inches; Thomas of Williams third, 110 feet 6 inches. Lovejoy saved the day for Dartmouth by pulling one point and fourth place with 110 feet, 4 inches.

BUSY WEEK AHEAD FOR GOLFERS NEARBY

Women's Championships at Wollaston and a Three-Day's Meeting at Woodland for Men the Features.

Both the men and women golfers of Massachusetts have a busy week ahead of them, for the annual championships of the Women's Golf Association of Boston at Wollaston will attract the members of the fair sex, who have championship aspirations, and then the next three days of the week will find the male golfers paying at Woodland to a three-day meeting.

The women's meeting is by far the most important event, and with so many girls turning their attention to golf this year who have very nearly reached an even level in respect to playing ability, it seems natural that this year's tourney should be the best in the history of the association.

There will be a number of entries similarly numerous, the Massachusetts amateur championship and the Boston women's meeting insomuch as both events will be played over the course of the holders of these titles.

Mrs. H. C. Wheeler won the title last year when she was Miss Marie B. Adams, of Oakley, by defeating Miss Katherine Harley, then the national champion. This brought the former sport honors, only to win a final from such a sterling golfer as Miss Harley, who has nearly gained enough to annex it one day.

Championship Record.

These meetings have been held for the last ten years, and the list of the winners and the runners-up in this championship follows:

1900—At the Oakley country club: Winner, Miss Grace B. Keyes; runner-up, Miss H. S. Curtis.

1901—At the Country Club: Winner, Miss Margaret Curtis; runner-up, Miss Grace Keyes.

1902—At the Wollaston Golf Club: Winner, Miss M. H. Adams; runner-up, Miss Grace B. Keyes.

1903—At the Oakley Country Club: Winner, Miss H. C. Harley; runner-up, Miss H. S. Curtis.

1904—At the Wollaston Golf Club: Winner, Miss E. F. Osgood; runner-up, Miss Margaret Curtis.

As you look over this list it is noticeable that all the winners have been the runners-up, were unmarried. This year there may be a change of luck, and Mrs. E. C. Wheeler is rated as the leading woman golfer in the State, and is also one of the best players the Bay State has boast of.

If we look down in the Philadelphia district we find that Miss Hollins and Mrs. R. H. Barlow, two matrons, have led this district and are each holding one of the two past winners of the Boston Women's title have changed their name after they won first honors, and it is safe to say that if both Mrs. R. D. Smith and Mrs. E. C. Wheeler were to play another title contest tourney that someone would have to hustle to take a play.

Program of the Tourney.

The conditions of play or rather the program for the tourney has been announced and is as follows:

Tuesday, May 24, qualification round of eighteen holes. First eight gross scores qualify for championship division; second eight scores qualify for championship division. There will be additional eights formed of the remaining contestants.

Wednesday, May 25, first round of match play in all five divisions; 18 holes. Handicap to begin for special prizes, 9 p. m.

Thursday, May 26, semi-final rounds in all divisions, 18 holes. Handicap tournament for special prizes, 9 p. m.

Entries for the eleventh annual championship tournament of the Boston Women's Golf Association close on Wednesday. Fifty-four players will compete. The entry list is a record-breaking one. Play begin on Tuesday.

The following list shows the order of play and who will play as partners in the eighteen-hole qualifying round on Tuesday morning. The first pair leave the first tee at 10 o'clock, and the others follow in pairs at five-minute intervals until the last pair start out at the early afternoon hour.

LOCKWOOD LOSES TO GOLFER FULLER

Wollaston Player Carries Off Honors of the Day at Meadowbrook.

The most successful open tournament that the Meadowbrook Golf Club has ever held was played yesterday, about the middle and rain, and F. D. Fuller, former state champion and Wollaston player, carried off the honors of the day by defeating H. Lockwood, jr., by a score of 3 up and 2 to play. Fuller's card was a beauty, being composed of 4's and 5's, with the exception of the 7 on the fifth hole, where he got into trouble. Lockwood, also a former Wollaston player, had a fine card, but one stroke, playing a 78.

ADDIE JOSS TELLS OF "NO HIT" GAMES

Modest Cleveland Pitcher Says Credit Really Belongs to the Other Fellows.

"Always has there been and always will there be too much fuss made over no-hit games," remarked Addie Joss. "I mean by this that generally there is too much credit given to the man in the box and not enough to the catcher and to the men in the field; the men who make the no-hit game possible. Strictly speaking, there is, of course, no such thing as a no-hit game. The only possible no-hit game would be one in which the pitcher struck out twenty-seven men in which the catcher had all of the twenty-seven put-outs and in which not even a chance was offered any other of the nine players on the team.

"I doubt if one ever heard a pitcher boast of having been the hero of a no-hit game. He knows too well how he was helped in order to fame by the man behind him; knows how large a need of the praise is due the catcher who coached him along.

"Base hits—some loose hits—and put-outs—some put-outs—are as nearly analogous that it is folly to talk of want of pitcher control when a batter walks on a certain ball to a certain batter.

Luck a Big Factor.

"If it is the lucky pitcher's day the ball will be batted still or into the hands of some fielder. If it is not the pitcher's day the ball will be batted a foot or two out of the catcher's reach and instead of an easy put-out it will not down to the records there is a scratch single or double to centre.

"See the point? The pitcher puts up a certain kind of a ball to a batter one day and the batter sends an easy fly to an outfielder. In the next game between the same clubs the pitcher feeds up the same kind of a ball. This time it is batted in a slightly different angle and the batter gets credit for a double or a triple.

"Of course, to pitch a 'no-hit game a pitcher must be at his best, out I have worked harder and felt 'itter, so to speak, in a game where a half dozen drives went safe than ever I did in a 'no-hit' battle.

"Earl he it from a member of the craft to belittle the work of the men who have pitched 'no-hit' games. Truth, however, demands that the fans should understand that the difference between the games which the batters fail to make a safety and the games in which they get two, three, four or five hits is very slight. After it is a difference of a yard or two in the direction which the ball takes when it leaves the bat; something, of course, with which the pitcher or batter had nothing to do."

TUFTS PITCHER GETS TEN STRIKEOUTS

Wesleyan Never Has a Chance in Diamond Clash With the Medford Boys.

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., May 21.—In a well played game, Tufts defeated Wesleyan to-day by a score of 5 to 1. Tufts had their star pitcher Martin in the box, and besides retiring ten of the home players on strikes, he allowed but three hits. Two of the hits came in the first inning, resulting in the home team's lone tally. The visitors made their first runs in the fourth inning on three hits and an error. In the sixth they scored again on a hit and two outs, and in the seventh Knight made the circuit on a long hit to centre. Dickenson got three hits out of five times at bat, while every player got at least one more hits, but Quarters and Roberts. The score:

MAINE AGAIN WINS.

McHale Strikes Out Eleven Men in Game with Bates.

LEWISTON, Me., May 21.—Bates lost to Maine on Garcelon Field to-day in an exciting game, but which at times was loosely played. McHale, the star pitcher of Maine, struck out eleven men and was hit safely but four times, those for singles. Hartshorn struck out thirteen, but was hit safely eight times. Loose playing in the eighth and a series of errors is responsible for Bates's defeat. Score:

This Team Broken Up.

BROCKTON, May 21.—Brockton High is up against it this season. Elmer Egan, the star catcher, has been forced to leave the team on account of parental objection. With him goes Allison Hayward, who is the mainstay of the locals and who has the greatest record of any high school pitcher for strikeouts. Eddie Casey, the crack third baseman, has also left the generally a timely rap to send them home, four.

Penn Shut Out.

FRANKLIN FIELD, Pa., May 21.—Cornell defeated Pennsylvania on Franklin Field to-day, and scored a shut-out victory by the score of 6 to 0. The Quakers secured just as many hits although while as Cornell did off Shultz, but when the Ithacan got men on base he was more timely. Ellis was the star performer with a single, double and triple.

STRAIGHT TIPS
FOR SPORT FANS

SAY, R. U. GAME DO YOU WANT TO drive me long distance? Now just to show the cussedness of human nature I'm going to print that stuff you sent me and then I'm going out and drink a gallon of broma seltzer. Here goes nuthin':

Dear Sir—In my mail this morning was a letter which contained, together with some equally logical dope, the following:—"that I know it's not so much how much he can weigh as how much I know how much to use on him."

Now Mr. Tips, if you will tell me how much to pack on a 175 pound man and how much I know will benefit me much, inasmuch as I don't know much, and don't use on any man a pound more than is necessary as I have an honest belief that it does an injury to him, you'll remuneration for the advice, how much I know I cannot say, but will send to know how much good it will do me to know so much about how much to use by weight as I know already. I will be pleased to pay for it, and for same, if you will kindly inform me how much it will cost to find out.

R. U. GAME.

Dear Sir—Kindly state in your answer to this column of the Boston American the following as soon as possible, as I have a bet of $5 on, which rests on your opinion: A bets Jeffries is all through, B bets Jeffries is the big battler. It bets he is, but that Johnson is the man to fight. Now, Mr. Tips, I hope he should, but is having a fine time on the money of Ed Krehbiel. Am I right?

Providence, R. I. Yours truly, M. McGINN.

CALL THIS BET OFF. I CANNOT decide it. I am here, not at the training camps. Jeffries and Johnson are not doing all their trainers require, but their work may not suit the outside critics.

Dear Sir—Should the umpire give a batter who has fouled a ball that the catcher hit the bat with, his decision to be final when the batter from hitting the ball. F. E. GRAY.

Hull, Mass.

YES, THE BATTER GETS HIS BASE. See Rule 55, section 5, and Rule 54, section 2.

Dear Sir—Kindly state in your column who Johnson fought before he fought Tommy Burns for the championship. I have been trying to trace up Johnson's early career, but so far I have been unable to find out anything of it. I have tried the account of his fight with Burns, but it only mentions a few fights and says nothing about his early days. Unable to find out anything of this kind, I write you for assistance. J. E. SHEEHAN.

Providence, R. I.

JOHNSON'S LAST FIGHT PREVIOUS to his fight with Burns was with Hugo Island, where at Plymouth he knocked out Ben Taylor in eight rounds.

Dear Sir—Can a team from the National League get a player from the American league and how. Please give me in run opinion the best players in a complete team from both leagues.

Fort Thetford, Vt. E. J.

IF ALL THE TEAMS IN THE AMERican League waive on a player in their league then a National League club can go after the player and make offers. The same plan fits in either league.

There are so many opinions on the best line-up of players in the two big leagues that anyone's choice is worth considering. Generally the men with best records are picked based wholly on standing at the top in the positions they occupy on their teams.

Dear Sir—Please state in your column whether Stanley Ketchel's correct name is one of that father, and if not, state right name and oblige. ACCOUNTANT READER.

KETCHEL'S RIGHT NAME IS STANIS laus Kiecut.

Dear Sir—Kindly give your opinion on the following: What do you think Wolgast and the rest of my lightweights are unwilling to fight me? I would be glad to put up a forfeit of $100 that I can be knocked out by Freddie Welsh or Packey McFarland.

Brooklyn, N. Y. R. U. GAME.

THERE IS A SERIOUS QUESTION whether McFarland can make the light-weight limit. If he will agree to do so Wolgast would be forced to fight him a match. You can't blame a fighter for not caring to meet a man heavier than himself.

The Straight Tips column in the BOSTON AMERICAN if the Boston Red Sox made a clean sweep of the New York Americans made clean sweep of the Highlanders. JOHN B. V.

NNo; the Red Sox failed to score in that game.

NO THE RED SOX FAILED TO score in that game.

Dear Sir—Let's get to your line to address Tips, Boston Post, Boston Globe and Boston Herald.

There are a few of us here, who, although exiled, still can't get along without your column. We've had an argument. Now it's up to you.

Battery Tips pitched ball, which tip falls behind batter's back, between plate and batter, striking his batsman on the leg.

Batter claims umpire should call a ball, as he used his head. The batsman is not when hit by a batted ball." Is he entitled to first base? If not, according to him, there is contained in the word batted" a meaning that a batted ball falls to come under this rule.

I hope I've made myself clear. Now please favor us with your opinion, which will settle a bet. Yours for quick action, CHRIS TALKINGTON.

Adelphi Theatre.

It is a foul ball. There is no rule such as "A" quotes.

Dear Sir—Will you please give me the correct answer to above? John D. Rockefeller lives in New York. Ben Hur is in Cleveland, Ohio. Ty Cobb is in New Jersey. What's the difference? Thanking you for any appreciation of your excellent column, I am, Yours truly,

LORENZO DEHIRLY,

Out side of sporting topics I only answer the easy ones; the hard ones go in the waste paper basket. Yours is easy. Mr. Rockefeller has a residence in New York, another in Cleveland and another in New Jersey.

HOLY CROSS-YALE GAME TIE, 5 TO 5

Old Rivals Battle for Eleven Innings at Former's Grounds.

WORCESTER, May 21.—Holy Cross and Yale battled it out eleven slow innings to a 5 to 5 tie on Fitton Field to-day under heavy skies and in a cold, raw wind with a scattering crowd to fill the cozy grandstand to overflowing. The game was one of the loosest that has ever been played between the great rivals, and still it was spiced with features.

"Joe" Foley, the best performer at the bowl, rolling out an off day and he was taken off the rubber in the sixth because of his wildness. Foley is the first man by way of color. Jim Mahoney, a third string rubber, was trotted onto the mound and he showed his mettle in grand style, in the eight innings he pitched he struck out while three were taken off Foley in six sessions, including Foley's turn.

In the first inning Yale's infield went to pieces and Tenney had the misfortune of the crowd. Captain Logan of the Eli crew hooted three rollers, Ted Coy, the football star, three flies, his side scoring its first and dropped an easy assist from Tenney's hands. The first two runs were earned by the visitors in this inning, in the fourth Foley was hit by the ball rolling with one man down. After that inning Yale settled down to fine stroke and the game was fairly well contested thereafter.

ALL THE NEWS OF THE JEFFRIES-JOHNSON TRAINING CAMPS

ANY REFEREE NAMED FOR BIG BOUT WILL BE HONEST, SAYS GOTCH

By FRANK GOTCH.

I am of the opinion that both principals for the championship tussle made too much ado about the referee. There does not seem to me to be any reason that any man picked would see other than honestly, even if he were so inclined. Too much is at stake, and any one who would give any one at all to ruling as referee of the battle would be lucky to escape from the arena, as there will be thousands present with good money at stake on the outcome of the go who would be aroused beyond reason were anything but an honest verdict rendered. So, let's all put in peace of mind with the knowledge that we are to have a square deal.

Both Jeffries and Johnson appear to be much nearer to fighting condition than they expected. Jeff is skipping through his work and finding himself fairly leaping toward fighting trim. It is hard for any one to say that a man will put up his best fight until he has seen the first turned.

Believes Jeff Will Win.

While I am as firm in the belief that those who see Jeffries tear into Johnson July 4 will need but little imagination to picture themselves at the San Francisco ringside watching the big undefeated fellow step away Jack Munroe in the last fight he waged before going into retirement, still some give positive assurance that a man will live up to his best fighting notch on a certain day. There is something vastly different between an exhibition bout in training and a real fight with thousands at stake. Perhaps the fellows who are training a man may be sturdy posers who are willing to pull and take the best in stock in their stable battles, but still the real combat is lacking.

We can see Jeffries train, and, marvelling at his wonderful footwork, his boxing skill, his wonderful strength of limb and if necessary,", but right there we make this statement we are saying something without real foundation. The excitement of a real fight is a thing that wears down a boxer more than the hardest exercises. He is working at the highest tension all the time and is taking more punishment than he ever received in training. There is a world of difference between a heavy breast to breast, with a man whom you know possesses the necessary power to knock you out and figuring and battling to beat him to the decisive punch than in a conditioning bout in which you know your opponent is trying only to benefit you for the work to come.

W. W. Naughton, whom I consider one of the best ring critics in the world, has watched Jeffries work recently and pronounced his condition as good as when he was in the heyday of his pugilistic success. I'm a rich would be the case two months ago, but, from believes as I am in Jeffries' ability to win, I must say with frankness that we shall know whether or not he is able to go the route on July 4, no sooner.

Johnson Needs Two Weeks' Work.

Jeffries' trainers have announced that he will be able to fight in a week. If nervousness and they believe it, Jeffries once has been outdone in the line of claims, for the negro, with becoming modesty, said that he would be all right two weeks to be fit for his best fight. He is trailing in a light weight and has taken off weight until he is down to the 220-pound mark, and has announced that he will not go at break-neck speed every day, but will wear three days a week and do just enough road work to keep his wind in good shape and cut off whatever superfluous weight he is carrying.

The fight fans of San Francisco were amazed at the gentlemanly demeanor showed in his first work on the coast, on account of the many stories of alleged dissipation on his part.

Jeff Skipping the Rope. Johnson Ready to Box.

THESE pictures were received here last night from the training camps of the big fighters at San Francisco. Good comparisons might be drawn from them, for they were taken while the fighters had their minds on their work. Jeffries, with lowered brow, is skipping the rope. This is his favorite exercise to develop the wind, a thing upon which hinges his chances to defeat Johnson.

Johnson, with his good-natured smile, is here shown in his famous boxing attitude. He is feinting with his left hand to draw his sparring partner so that he can shoot over his powerful right. It will be noticed that the dusky fighter has quite an expanse of waist, which is credited to idleness. This picture was taken when Johnson began his boxing work.

Jeffries Is Tireless.

"In all my long experience in the ring, I never have seen a man so absolutely tireless and immune to the ordinary effects of hard work. They keep on citing the many instances of fighters never spending Jeffries after a layoff of this length of time. There is some good ideas for these arguments. But let me tell one thing that escapes the average man. A thoroughbred Jeffries is not really human, so tremendous is his capacity for work. That's really what I think sometimes. Johnson is a great fellow, but for the life of me I don't see how he is going to win."

Choynski did not have so much to do in the Jeffries camps as he had anticipated. The big fellow does not take orders from any one lately. He knows what he needs to fit himself for the fight, and maps out the daily routine himself, making up a menu from day to day, or until he finds out how he is feeling, the state of the weather, etc.

CHOYNSKI DECLARES JEFFRIES A WONDER

By ED W. SMITH.

(Special Staff Correspondent of the American Newspaper Association.)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—If Jim Jeffries is not in the best physical condition right now, he has fooled some of the best judges of athletic form on the Pacific Coast as well as the men in his immediate camp. But Jeff is not trying to fool anybody at all as far as his own form is concerned, for anybody who goes to the camp now is welcome to see and draw his own conclusions.

It was with considerable curiosity that I approached Joe Choynski for a talk about the big fellow. Joe had been in the camp for two weeks and hobnobbed a bit this and drawn as a result of his labors.

"Right glad to have a chance to unburden my mind right now," Joe started off when I asked him what he thought of the situation as far as Jeffries was concerned. "But there is not much use of my talking to you about it, for there after you have seen for yourself what he can do with Armstrong and me?

"First of all, let me tell you, as I have told some others and have asked Jeff's thing about this camp to conceal. All is to the open and free as a church and all are welcome to come and look around.

Nothing to Conceal.

"Many people have come out here and friends of mine all over the country have written to me asking if I would give a confidential opinion of the big fellow. All have approached the subject as if it were a great secret. It is anything but that. There is nothing to conceal. I know all there is to know about Jeffries and his physical condition and am as willing as he is to give

Straight Tips from Fighting Camps

By WEX JONES

ROWARDENNAN—Big Jeff was out on the road early this morning, followed by Farmer Burns, Sheriff Smith, Armorer Hoard, Young Mississippi, Breadtrust Brown, Coal Shack Kid, Freight-car Jungles and a few others of his training staff. Twelve miles were covered, at a fast clip and then the big fellow began to sprint. Unfortunately he worked up too much speed that he was unable to stop at the training camp and ran twenty-five miles over the mountains before he could check himself. This left the former champion somewhat stiff, and consequently he did no work this afternoon, instead going after trout. He brought back 250 pieces of which he caught in his hands, doing a Kellerman into the water after them. This exercise is great for improving Jeff's judgment of distance, and grappling with the trout is great preparation for rough work in the clinches.

ROWARDENNAN—Zeke Hoffens, the famous sporting man of Milwaukee, visited Jeff's camp today. After watching the big fellow romp at fisticuffs with Referee Rickard and Gleason will be compelled to hand over a large share of the spoils to the "right guy." Whether Rickard will consent to such a plan is not is a matter of interest, and it is also a problem as to whether Gleason will name one, will back him up to the limit.

Meanwhile there's a big ordinance problem afoot. Jeffries will go to Reno twenty rounds of training. Whether or not he will be permitted to pursue the Jeffries-Johnson fight, which must be pulled off more than forty miles, according to the articles of agreement. Though the authorities in Alameda County to stop the fight at Emeryville, the reformers will now increase their activity to prevent the mill in Nevada.

Rickard is said to be greatly worried over the situation, and if the opposition of the substitute increases he may decide to take the fight over the State line into Nevada. In fact, many veteran sporting men have been expecting some such move all along in view of the haunting management of the mill and the many queer angles that have developed.

ROWARDENNAN—Jeffries was paced by a well-known rook and suit man of New York, visited Jeffries's training camp today. After watching Jeffries resting on the porch, Mr. Potash said:

"Jeffries weighs at least 295 pounds and is bald except for three hairs above his left ear. He cannot rest for three minutes without blowing like a grampus. Mr. Johnson will make it a plenty already."

Mr. Potash some months ago wagered $35 on Johnson.

SAN FRANCISCO—St Bogbie, editor of the Wholesale Grocers' Bulletin, visited Johnson's training quarters today and watched the burly negro skip the bag and punch the rope for three hours without a drink. When asked what he thought of the champion's chances in the big mill, Mr. Bogbie chewed a coffee bean for some minutes and then replied:

"Johnson has a dark face."

Mr. Bogbie was accompanied by another literary man, James Rapper, special commissioner of the Tobacco Trade Review. In discussing the coming battle Mr. Rapper remarked:

"I fancy the colorado."

ROWARDENNAN—Jeffries was in a very grouchy mood today. He had a stiff neck, a boil on his shoulder and a corn on his larboard feet. Despite these adversities the athletic king feels the stirring of trying to get into shape. After chopping down ten giant trees with a stick of thousand Jeff was perspiring freely and was evidently very tired.

Until he slipped and almost fractured his knee cap. Instead of smiling the big fellow looked quite peevish. This shows how his nerves are upset by the effort to get into condition.

SAN FRANCISCO—Johnson was paced to the pond this morning by a racing car in which was affianced a fried chicken. He swatting Senegambian covered ten miles in 1 1-5 seconds.

JEFF'S WEIGHT O. K.; HIS WIND IS GREAT, BUT IS HE STRONG?

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—The big fight is barely six weeks away and it might be well to engage in a little stock taking. One of the questions most frequently asked is: "How has Jim Jeffries come along in his training?" The answer, I take it, should be, "Very well indeed."

Jim has thrown his whole heart and soul into his work and has proved a good many things. First of all, he proved that he was able to reach fighting proportions without incurring any of the ills prophesied if he attempted such a wholesale reduction of flesh after years of inactivity.

In the next place, he has proved that he retained his old-time strength and endurance and that his wind has no flaws in it.

You have only to look at Jeffries, of course, to know that he is down to his fighting notch in weight. As for his endurance, the tales brought back to camp by those who have tried to keep step with him over miles and miles of mountain trail are convincing testimony. The endurance displayed by Jeffries in the sprinting and running would be in evidence, of course, if the strain was of a different character, for it is his muscular, lung power and faultless heart action that enables him to perform prodigies of outdoor work, and these same qualities would stand him in other tests of stamina.

For that matter Jeffries's gymnasium exercises are generally of a gruelling character and the way he winds up his daily grind proves that he is capable of sustained exertion and that his breathing apparatus is in the best of shape.

Jeff's Strength a Guess.

As for Jeffries's strength it can only be guessed at, but the way his sparring partners crumple when he pushes playfully and uses his massive shoulder as a battering ram suggests that he is as reckless from the standpoint of force as he was in past campaigns.

I guess that is about as far as anyone can go for big Jim at present. He has endurance, strength and good wind. Some may claim that he also has speed, but many a man has been accredited with this attribute and has been made to appear as slow as ice by some one who is rushing against the man he went through all his training for.

Sam Berger, Jeffries's manager, says that all Jeffries needs now is plenty of fast work, so as to accustom him to hitting, blocking and dodging with his old-time rapidity. This sounds fine, but there will be no way of gauging whether Jeffries has regained these faculties until he has shaped up against Johnson.

Training camp standards and comparisons are unreliable. A man can extend himself to the limit out on the road and show all that he is capable of in that line of exercise, but in most of necessity he under wraps when boxing with his partners. If he were to cut loose without reserve, he would find it hard work probably to keep any help around him.

How Hard Can He Punch?

Such a thing as hiring a human punching bag, who is willing to endure all the discomforts and rigors of a private typical or pureless prize fight, for hire, is talked of occasionally when men are in training, but is seldom put into execution. Therefore, the best we get while watching Jeffries in his daily spars is the sight of a human giant setting to in a halting way with men who are palpably no match for him. For as likes as to what extent Jim can indle out really swift and punishing blows we have to draw on our imaginations.

This much can be said, however. There is nothing about Jeffries's indoor program which suggests that he is not as active on his feet and with his gloves as he was years ago. There is nothing to hint that he does not retain his fighting abilities, that his judgment of distance is impaired, or that he is not as quick brained as he used to be in dealing with emergencies.

By and taken, nothing short of the fight itself will prove that he is the Jeffries of old in this direction. That stiff years' layoff is always a wet blanket to those who have enthused over Jeffries's work and training. They may say they are positive he is the same old Jeffries, but the possibility that time may have slowed him up and affected his fighting tales by a more or less degree will intrude itself.

Some Strange Arguments.

In this connection one hears some strange arguments and similes. During one discussion of this particular point I heard a man contend that five years of dissipation had left Jeffries in the ideal condition for a fight. "A railroad man once told me that if a locomotive was left in the sheds for a year, it acted crazy as a bedbug when taken out and put to work again," said the fellow in question. "I also know a man who kept his yacht in the estuary for a couple of years, and he swore to me he could never get it to sail straight after words."

It will, therefore, be seen that if Jim proves that time's effacing fingers have not tampered with his ability to shine in his favorite field of endeavor, he will have upset the theories that have for years applied to both animate and inanimate objects.

In conclusion, if the clean-cut way Jeffries has rid himself of drossness and has sharpened his wind convey any hint as to what more he can accomplish in the work of restoration, those who are picking him and backing him to win have every reason to feel cheerful over the prospects.

BET $3,000 TO $12,000 ON NO FIGHT JULY 4

NEW YORK, May 21.—Three months ago a prominent sporting man in this city wagered $1,500 against $6,000 with another follower of pugilism that the Jeffries-Johnson fight would not take place on July 4. The other night at a hotel near Forty-second street these men united on the wager and after the money had been posted in the hands of a stakeholder a long discussion of the proposed battle on the coast ensued. The man who will take down $12,000 if there is no fight on July 4 said he was banking on several obstacles that might be thrown in the way.

"In the first place," he explained, "it may rain cats, dogs and elephants on the day of the mill. A postponement would be necessary, of course, because of the unfavorable conditions for the taking of moving pictures, which mean probably half a million dollars for the promoters and fighters.

"The second place the reformers may get so busy that the promoters at the last minute may decide to call off the fight and go to Nevada and the building of an arena at Goldfield or Reno would require a week or ten days. Then again there may be a falling out over the referee question and either Jeffries or Johnson may refuse to enter the ring. It is possible that one of the fighters may be taken seriously ill or die. An earthquake, too, may upset the plans. I've got all these chances to win my bet, which seems like a good investment when I can get 4 to 1."

Referee Is Criticised.

Meanwhile the selection of Tex Rickard as referee, even if only temporary, is causing renewed criticism. At long range among sporting men say they do not relish the idea of the leading promoter acting as the third man in the ring and will not feel positive that everything is above board until a substitute for Rickard has been named.

If it is true that Rickard will finally appoint Eddie Graney to referee, local sporting men believe there will be no fight, inasmuch as Jeffries is unalterably opposed to Graney. Rickard's relations with Johnson ever since the fight was first discussed would seem to indicate that in the event upon him as referee, it is not possibly known something under the sun that Rickard will not do to make acceptable to Jeffries it is a well known fact that Johnson would not have signed articles of agreement.

CROWDS WATCH JEFF IN SPARRING SHOW

JEFFRIES'S TRAINING CAMP, Rowardennan, Cal., May 21.—Before the shadows of evening had fallen over the mountains Jim Jeffries had put behind him one of the longest and fastest days' work he has done since he began the toughening of his training. With one strenuous day of boxing and a morning of fast work and excitement about in Santa Cruz, Jeffries could display a near holiday.

"We are just about in shape already," said Farmer Burns in attempting to curb Jeffries in his craving for battle. "The fight is more than six weeks away yet, and you all you need is to keep on from working too hard."

"I suppose I'm working a bit hard," admitted Jeffries. "But I tell you it pays when it comes to the ring and go fourteen or fifteen rounds without putting the water bottle to my lips or feeling a trace of weariness."

The undisturbed quiet which has prevailed at this camp for the past week about the Jeffries-Johnson fight will be disturbed this afternoon when automobiles begin to roll into camp from San Francisco and parties of sightseers begin climbing the mountains.

Immediately after dinner Jeffries and his men, as well as a large number of the automobile parties, motored to Santa Cruz for the big fighter's first exhibition since he began regular training for the fight here at Santa Cruz was packed for the Jeffries show. Jeffries and his three sparring partners were given an enthusiastic reception. It was plain that Jeffries's condition made a profound impression upon the spectators.

Farmer Burns opened the program with a lecture on physical culture and with sparring, demonstrating hitting and jabbing. Jeffries ripped ropes. Shadow boxed and performed other gymnastic stunts. The feature of the program was six rounds of sparring with Jack Jeffries, Bob Armstrong and Joe Choynski.

MANY OBSTACLES IN WAY OF FIGHT

NEW YORK, May 21. The big fight situation, as it looks from here, is take:

Having formally announced that the ring for the Jeffries-Johnson fight will be pitched within the city limits of San Francisco instead of at the Emeryville race track, Promoters Rickard and Gleason are now up against a more serious proposition than ever before. They have been forced to take another promoter, Jack Griffin, into negotiations for the control of the fight Griffin, standing well with Police Commissioner John A. Hergel, has the July permit for a fight in the Earthquake City.

Associated with Griffin in part Pilgrim, patrick, former manager of Jack Johnson, who was also known until after the big negro had won the heavyweight title from Tommy Burns. Fitzpatrick is a lifelong friend of Hergel, who was "Young Mitchell" in the prize ring years ago, and has got friends to see that Fitzpatrick gets a piece of the big fight video. Fitzpatrick has several side bonding matches Johnson and the interest feeling exists between them. For that reason it is thought that there will be a serious objection by Johnson when he finds that Fitzpatrick has been virtually "buried in" by Hergel and Griffin.

It will cost an additional $25,000 to procure a fight arena in San Francisco, and already another promoter, Louis Blaul, has leased ground and begun work on a huge structure, probably with the idea that he too can cut in on the big affair.

Must Divide Spoils.

Those who know how they do things on the Coast believe therefore that before the fight takes place, if it does take place in Frisco, Rickard and Gleason will be compelled to hand over a large share of the spoils to the "right guys." Whether Rickard will consent to such a plan is not is a matter of interest, and it is also a problem as to whether Gleason will name one, will back him up to the limit.

Meanwhile there's a big ordinance problem afoot. Jeffries will go to Reno twenty rounds of training. Whether or not he will be permitted to pursue the Jeffries-Johnson fight, which must be pulled off more than forty miles, according to the articles of agreement. Though the authorities in Alameda County to stop the fight at Emeryville, the reformers will now increase their activity to prevent the mill in Frisco.

Rickard is said to be greatly worried over the situation, and if the opposition of the substitute increases he may decide to take the fight over the State line into Nevada. In fact, many veteran sporting men have been expecting some such move all along in view of the haunting management of the mill and the many queer angles that have developed.

RICKARD NOT FIRST PROMOTER TO ACT

By HARRY D. CASHMAN.

The latest angle of the big fight, the selection of "Tex" Rickard as referee, has caused considerable comment as the determined opposition to the affair in Alameda County. It isn't the first time that a promoter has been the third man in the ring when the boxers themselves fell out over a question.

A notable case in point is one that should long be remembered by Jack Johnson, who was always some headstrong when it came to a question of picking out a referee. When Jack faced Marvin Hart in San Francisco he went through much the same antics as he has done in the present case. No one sulked more but one man that Hart would have nothing to do with. Marvin, in fact, many veteran sporting men have been expecting some such move all along in view of the haunting management of the mill and the many queer angles that have developed.

"I'll referee the fight myself," announced Gleason. "If either of you has any objection we'll call the whole thing off right now."

As both boxers needed the coin at the time, they pretended to be satisfied. The decision giving Hart the verdict was little short of a crime. Marvin had not laid a glove on Johnson for twenty rounds, while his own face was unrecognizable from Jack's steady lobbing. It is the only black eye Johnson has ever received, aside from the knockout by Choynski when he was just starting in the sport.

I am not saying that Rickard will not be square. But what does he know about the referee's job? Besides, the man who takes tickets at a three-ring circus has his hands full and is not expected to furnish the show as well. The only way of doing the thing out is to fancy Rickard as a temporary compromise candidate to restore confidence. When the men have cooled off they can get together and agree on some one to take "Tex's" place.

YALE AUTOISTS PLAN RECORD HILL CLIMB

Students, Graduates and Star Professionals Enter for Great Event.

With the annual hill climb of the Yale University Automobile Club (June 7) now near at hand and with the entry list about to close inside of ten days, the automobilists at Yale are busily completing final plans for what promises to be the largest climb, in point of entries, ever held for the participation of crack drivers in New England.

Co-operating with the college men in assuring the success of the event and hundreds of Yale "grads" all over the country, who are ex-members of the Yale Automobile Club, and every day brings in entries from enthusiasts in distant parts of the country. Frederick J. Wagner will be starter and C. H. Gillette will referee.

All members of the Yale Auto Club have entered cars and the students will drive their own machines, as keen rivalry has been aroused by the offering of a special medal to the Yale motorist making the fastest ascent. Last year "Dick" Wiles of the class of 1909, ex-secretary of the club, won the medal. His time is expected to be lowered several seconds this year.

A number of Yale graduates who have developed into auto enthusiasts have also entered cars and among them is Jos. Rainey, son of the manufacturer of the Reinier machine, who is to drive his own car. Another graduate who has entered and whose presence is to be a feature of the event is Caleb Bragg, whose sensational driving in events all over the country since graduation two years ago has placed him in the front rank of crack drivers. Bragg broke a number of records and defeated Barney Oldfield in a contest new recently in Los Angeles. He is a former official of the Yale Club and has promised to enter and to try to bring along Oldfield as his guest.

David Bruce Brown, the famous amateur who holds the Shingle Hill record, has also re-entered and is determined to lower his spectacular time a few seconds, driving his powerful Benz.

More professional drivers will be seen, it is probable, this year before in the free-for-all, as manufacturers and dealers throughout the East are realizing that the college event offers prestige which affords a wider range of advertising advantages than the average meet.

NOW ON HER WAY TO FRISCO

MISS SCOTT, WHO IS MAKING TRIP FROM NEW YORK TO SAN FRANCISCO

AMERICAN AUTO CO. OPEN SERVICE DEPOT

An automobile service depot such as the American Automobile Company has added to its business, is a very valuable asset to have, for such reasons as the following: A company such as the American Automobile Company, handling a high-grade machine, is constantly dealing with people of the wealthy class, who are continually changing from one make of car to the other. Some change so as to get the new models and the latest accessories, while others change for a speedier car; in all events they have some particular reason, and, of course, to make these exchanges the up-to-date auto dealer must take the old machine in part payment for the new one, and this is where the service depot comes into the limelight. The old car has to be overhauled and put into shape before it is marketable.

Of course, a first-class service depot must have first-class mechanics, and the American Company is very fortunate in having such a man as "Jack" Andrews to manage such a repair shop, for without doubt "Jack" is the most versatile automobile mechanic in Boston today, and has been identified with the industry since the old bicycle days.

This modern automobile depot is located in Cambridge, on Green street, near the old Charles River Bridge track, and is easily reached from the city proper by the way of Harvard bridge.

Demarest Lloyd, the president of the American Automobile Company, has increased the demand for American cars this season 100 per cent, and in a short interview said that the American car was only now coming into its own from a racing as well as from an endurance and stability point of view.

APPERSONS ADD TO PLANT.

Increased Business Makes a New Building Necessary.

The capacity of the plant of the Apperson Brothers Automobile Company at Kokomo, Ind., is being increased fully one-third by an addition now being built. The new building was made necessary by the increased volume of the Apperson business.

As the Appersons make a feature of testing their cars before they are permitted to leave the factory, it is their intention to devote the greater portion of the new structure, if not all of it, to the work of the testing departments.

A visitor to the Apperson plant recently was an European motor car expert of note. He was shown through the factory and made the comment that conditions and methods in the Kokomo plant more nearly approached those in the leading factory of Europe than any other factory he had seen in this country.

THE "COLE 30."

It Is Now Represented in Boston by a Live Concern.

The "Cole 30" is among the latest low priced cars to have representation in this city, the firm of G. E. & H. J. Habich Co. at 229 Berkeley street having taken over this car.

It is not yet well known in the East, but has given a good account of itself in races and other competitive events in the central States and in the West. The "Cole 30" is built by the Cole Motor Car Co., under called the Flyer, a light touring car, a tourabout and the palace touring car. The motor is of the unit type, with four cylinders cast in pairs. Ignition is by spark from a high tension magneto, driven in by shaft, the wheelbase is 108 inches and the wheels 32 by 3½.

Gold Cup Course Longer.

The directors of the Motor Cups Holding Company have decided to lengthen the distance of this year's race for the Grand Prize gold cup of the Automobile Club of America, which is to be held on Long Island on Saturday, October 15. It had been originally intended that the race distance would be 278.8 miles or twenty-two rounds of the circuit in Nassau county, but the distance is now scheduled as 309.2 miles, or thirty rounds of the circuit.

800 ORPHAN CHILDREN ASK AUTOISTS' AID FOR ONE DAY OF PLEASURE

Boston Dealers and Dr. Deming Still 100 Cars Short for Outing on June 8; Glidden Tour Course Wins Much Praise.

By J. C. Kerrison.

It is the intention of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association and Dr. Deming of the Lake Shore House at Sharon to be entertaining something like unfortunate children connected with the different homes in Greater Boston on Wednesday, June 8. This is a unique undertaking in itself, and while the gentlemen in question are willing to go to extremes in order to give to the unfortunates at least one red-letter day in their lives they cannot do the impossible, and in this respect the impossible is for themselves to furnish the necessary number of automobiles to carry the little ones from Boston to Sharon.

They have made every solicitation on members of the trade and among individual owners of automobiles, but as yet they have failed to receive that support which the character of the undertaking has warranted. More than 100 cars, in addition to those they have already secured, will be needed for the day, and it is the earnest request of all concerned that the individual owner come to their support in greater numbers than they have to date. To give up the use of one car for a single day in a whole year is not asking a whole lot.

It means to the little one a run into the country, an opportunity to enjoy nature, to do best, to eat their fill of the good things provided by Dr. Deming, and to return home slightly pleased with the world at large and the automobile owners in particular.

The time for the outing is rapidly drawing near and Secretary Campbell of the Automobile Dealers' Association will be pleased to receive notices to the effect that he may use your car on that date, June 8.

It is believed that something like seventy-five cars will compete in the 1910 Glidden Tour, the start of which has been advanced one day to June 14, the finishing date at Chicago June 29, thereby allowing fourteen running days and two Sundays of rest.

The date for the 1910 Tour Book, which is to be combined with the three-year book, has been turned over to Chairman Butler by Hal Lewis, who has just returned from the Palm Finder trip.

The route of the big national tour measures up just 2,850 miles from Cincinnati, O., to Chicago, via the line which has been determined upon and which passes through thirteen States and loops around an area of nearly one million square miles, containing more than 50,000,000 people. It is by far the most extensive and important tour in the history of the A. A. A.'s annual contest.

The association, in selecting this route through the progressive Southwest, is satisfied that the 1910 cars entered will get one of the finest mechanical tests ever offered in a reliability contest. At the same time the Manufacturers' Contest Association has approved the route on the score of covering the most promising market country for the sale of cars next year.

Local enthusiasm along the route seems to increase rather than subside. During the week the contest board has received barrels of letters from motor clubs, commercial organizations and municipal officials in effect scented as stopping points, asking if, now that their cities have been selected, they can make any further preparations which will add to the comfort and pleasure of the visiting tourists.

The entries received to date are as follows:

GLIDDEN TROPHY DIVISION.
1—Premier Motor Mfg. Co.
2—Premier Motor Mfg. Co.
3—Chandler Motor Co.
4—Chandler Motor Co.
5—Cole Motor Car Co.

2 Pullman Motor Co Co.
2 Ohio Motor Co Co.
Some eight carriage has been made in the event of the Worcester Hill Climbing Contest on June 4. Four of them are for motor cycles, one open to professionals, another open to trade riders, and the other to Worcester County riders. The fifth added event is that for the exhibition of stock cars of all motor powers, and if sufficient "electrics" are secured, another event will be added, that for electric vehicles. The Waite-Robbins Motor Company has made an entry for this event, and it is believed that other dealers will be induced to come forward and demonstrate just what an electric vehicle can do for climbing Bead Horse Hill. The entrance fee for these events closes on Wednesday, June 1, and the present indications are that there will be a large field.

Three Days' Vacation with Pay for Mr. Flanders's Auto Makers.

To close seven big automobile plants down for three consecutive days, giving every employe a vacation at full pay, is the rather unusual thing which President Flanders of the E. M. F. Company will do, during the week of July 11 the Elks' convention occurs in Detroit. Flanders plans to give every employe the last three days of that week off to participate in the celebration or go to other to enjoy themselves. The cost to the E. M. F. Company of doing this is over $17,000 per day.

BONNELL ON NEW JOB.

A. A. A. Treasurer Joins Forces of Licensed Makers.

Horace A. Bonnell, treasurer of the American Automobile Association, has joined forces with the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers. He will act as assistant to Alfred Reeves, the general manager, taking the place made vacant by the resignation of C. F. Clarkson, who is now associated with the Society of Automobile Engineers.

Mr. Bonnell is one of the pioneer automobilists and for several years was secretary of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club of Newark. He has been manager of the Newark show for the past three years. Largely through his efforts the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey were reorganized.

Roby Snatches Up License No. 13 When Others Balk.

License tag number 13, which in some States never finds a user, has been snapped up eagerly in one instance, at least. Minnesota tag No. 13 was seized by W. E. Roby, the Diamond tire branch manager in Minneapolis, when in regular order his number otherwise would have been 4,801. Mr. Roby wanted the number because this is the thirteenth year since the Diamond Rubber Company made its first motor tires, because he has been identified with the rubber business for thirteen years and because the Minneapolis branch was the thirteenth direct distributing establishment the Diamond tire concern established.

FRANKLIN'S SCORE CLEAN.

Covers Difficult 600-Mile Route Without a Penalty.

Running for two days through rainstorms, which made the road surfaces soft and slippery, a Franklin touring car of forty-two horsepower finished the three days of the Harrisburg reliability run with a perfect road score. John Burns guided the Franklin car nearly 200 miles a day without mishap of any kind. No tool was used on the car during the trip; not an adjustment was made; and there were no punctures or other tire troubles to mar the perfect performance of the trip of almost 600 miles. Every control was reached with

WHITE CO. ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR 1911 CARS

Gasoline Cars Show Only Refinements in Important Matters; Steam Cars Improved.

The White Company has just announced its line of steam and gasoline cars built for the coming season and no changes have been made worthy of particular note in the design of the various models.

Considering first the engine with which the several types of gasoline vehicles are equipped, no noteworthy changes have been made. The engine retains those characteristic features which The White Company introduced a year ago and which have since been adopted by a number of the leading foreign makers.

Cylinders Cast As Heretofore.

The four cylinders are cast en bloc with the intake and exhaust passages included within the engine casting. As a result of this construction there are no gasket joints or manifolds, the latter two parts being cast integral with the cylinders and the exhaust gases are conducted to the atmosphere from the cylinders in the most perfect manner possible.

The long stroke principle is retained for the stroke of 5½ inches has been maintained at 4¼ inches the bore of 4½ inches. The intake and exhaust valves are all on one side of the engine and the entire valve mechanism is enclosed. The Bosch magneto and the carbureter are placed side by side on opposite sides of the engine and are driven by positive gears.

Crank-Shaft of Great Strength.

The crank shaft is forged of nickel steel and is of unusually heavy construction. A feature of the crank shaft construction is the arrangement whereby the connecting rod bearings are positively lubricated.

THE SPEED GRACE AND DURABILITY OF YOUR CAR

DEPEND UPON ITS POWER DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION

The design of our Six-Cylinder Car, when first made in 1905, was so perfectly worked out in the drafting room that no changes in the mechanism have been found necessary.

There are at the present time over three thousand of our Six-Cylinder Cars in active use and each machine is giving perfect satisfaction to its user.

The Four-Cylinder Stevens is popular priced and constructed along modern lines. True worth of an automobile is based on mechanical excellence, economy and durability.

Uniformly good!! It does not mean "good this year, bad last year and doubtful next year." It means "good every year." The Stevens-Duryea is best today and will be best next year.

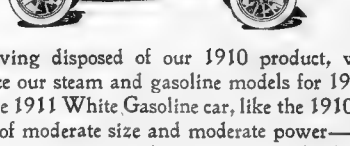
WHITE Steam and Gasoline CARS for 1911

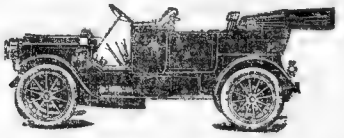


Having disposed of our 1910 product, we now announce our steam and gasoline models for 1911.

The 1911 White Gasoline car, like the 1910 model, is a car of moderate size and moderate power—the type which is most economical to maintain and which fully answers the requirements of the great majority of motorists.

The design of the White includes a number of desirable features which are not yet embodied in any other American car.

The QUALITY of the White, part by part, is not equaled in any other car of moderate price and is not excelled even in the highest-priced cars.



The new White Steamer represents eleven years of development of a type of car which possesses many desirable qualities not found in any other automobile. We wish to direct special attention to the "Presidential pattern," 40 horse-power, seven-passenger steamer—the easiest riding and most comfortable car in the world.

CITY OR COUNTRY LIFE—Which?

"HOW I WOULD MAKE THE KIDDIES HAPPY IF I WERE VERY RICH."

ALL aboard, Kiddies! Off we go, sailing up into the blue sky to play hide and seek with the feathery clouds and pluck bouquets of twinkling stars! Of course, I'm dreaming again that I'm an enormously rich heiress, with a whole fleet of aeroplanes in my airship garage. But if the dream should come true, wouldn't it be just the grandest thing for the Kiddies? No selfish all-alone sky speeding for me! I'd have happy, laughing Kiddies hanging about me while I held the steering wheel, and Kiddies swarming on every sail and spar. And to the music of their happy laughter we'd sail and sail among the fleecy clouds and forget that there was such a thing as this ugly, old workaday earth!

Best Stories of Week in Boston

Hot Shot!

By William McConville well-known sporting man.

THIS story [illegible] is certainly a good one, and I never heard it till the other day. A man from Boston was visiting his friend in Philadelphia, and the Quaker was bragging about his city streets as compared with those of the Hub.

"Why, do you know," he said, "the other day I went over to Boston, not for the first time either, I never could find my way about through your crooked streets, but this time I got into a worse tangle than ever. I twisted and turned, and at last, in despair, I touched the shoulder of a man ahead of me and beseechingly inquired the way. Any perhaps you won't believe it, but I was walking along such a crooked street that I was tapping myself on my own shoulder and asking the way of myself. Can you find anything like that in Philadelphia, where our streets are so well laid out?"

"No indeed" replied the Bostonian But if Boston was as mad as Philadelphia our streets would need to be as well laid out."

An Irish Bull

By James Brown, well-known Roxbury business man

TALKING of Irish bulls, I have read about many, of them which may or may not be true, but this one certainly is for I heard it with my own ears.

Going by my old home where I was brought up and lived till I went out into the world to fight for myself, I said to the friend who was with me.

"Let's stop in and see father for a moment."

But nobody was in sight, except the gardener.

"Where's father," I asked. "Not out here? Well, perhaps he's in the house." and I started for the back door.

"Hould on, there," said Patrick "He isn't in the house. If he was, he'd be out!"

A Stranger

By Major Joseph J. Kelley of South Boston.

THIS is a story about a South Boston traveling salesman who has to spend much of his time away from home. I don't mention any names, but if you see him he'll plead guilty.

One night he dashed home while on his way through the city. The children were in bed—he only has six. Next morning he slept till 9 o'clock, but had to rush to catch a 10 o'clock train for Providence.

Going to the front door he called to the children, who were playing in the street.

"Here, you!" he shouted. "All of you come in."

"Shut up, you mutt!" answered his youngest son, whereupon the father gathered his offspring across his knee and spanked him till he squalled.

Straightway the kiddy ran to his mother.

"Maw," he complained loudly, "that man that's here visitin' you just whipped me!"

A Black Tale

By Frederick T. Keefe of the Alpha Outing Club.

I HAVE heard a number of funny stories told by immigrants, but one that came in fresh last week from the old country has certainly tickled me some. And it is vouched for, too.

Immigrants who come from Southern Europe think American ink is fit only for the swill pail. They have a concoction of their own, made out of raspberries and other such things. These are turned into a dark liquid and sold for ink in demijohns covered with wickerwork. A demijohn filled with this ink was one of the most prized possessions of an intelligent immigrant who came over within a week.

Aboard ship the immigrant in question guarded his demijohn well, but awoke one morning to discover that it had disappeared. In vain he searched to find a clue to its whereabouts.

Several mornings after he was patrolling the steerage, up with the early bird, when he noticed a number of seamen with dark rings around their mouths, and ever and anon as he watched them, they brushed their hands to their lips, wherewith the dark substance spread and spread, until they looked like a lot of adult printer's devils.

Suddenly the immigrant got wise, and here is how he expressed his first thought to a friend of mine.

Those dirty sea dawgs drank my ink, thinking it was whiskey in the demijohn."

The Crisis

By a well-known Dorchester doctor.

A SERIOUS case that took considerable of my time a short while ago where one of my patients was with stomach trouble, was considerably enlivened by a little miss, the daughter of the sick man, who when I would be making an examination of her father, was always at my arm anxiously inquiring when I was going to make her papa well and if I was sure that the medicine [illegible] him was the right kind. [illegible] marked, "He has been sick low too long."

The little lady being very bright, I informed her that on the ninth day of his sickness there would be a crisis and that I could then tell her definitely what would be the result.

"With a wonderful look [illegible] blue eyes she watched me a moment intently, and finally said:

"Which he gets that horrid old crisis out of his stomach, Mr. Doctor, he will be all better, won't he?"

Yes, It's New.

By Ex-Governor Curtis Guild.

I JUST heard what I consider a new answer to an old joke. It was [illegible] reply to a much more logical and [illegible] to-date reply than the old one I [illegible] has been one of the chronic assets of [illegible] in nursery since I was endman in [illegible] the first Buffalo's entertainment.

"What is it," did you ask? Well, you've heard them myself. "Why does a chicken cross the road?" The old answer used to be, "To get on the other side," but in this modern day of speeding autos and flying motorcycles the correct reply is:

"To commit suicide."

Not That Kind

By George Burrill of Dorchester.

WHILE delivering and collecting for dog licenses in the Spring to the owners of dogs, I called at a house on Westville street, Dorchester, and to my ring at the bell was surprised to be greeted by a pretty little girl. Seeing that I was a license officer she gave her somewhat of a start. I soon relieved her mind, however, and passing her the license asked her to give it to her mother when she came home.

"What is it on the paper?" asked the little miss.

"It is the dog license for your Rover," I replied.

"Well, haven't you got another one for my Tootsy?" asked the little maid.

I, thinking that there was another dog in the house not licensed asked her to show me the dog, and running into the rear of the house she soon returned with a large plaster of paris image of a dog.

Funny Things Children Say

ONE day two little cousins [illegible] and had to control talking about what they were going to do when they were grown up.

[illegible] What are you going to be, Edith? asked Miss Marie.

"I'm going to get married and have four children and send them all to your school. Won't that be nice?" said Edith.

"No it won't. I'll just wish them [illegible] them, and [illegible] done to me," said Edith beginning to cry.

"PAPA, said a little girl, running into the room with the air of one [illegible] valuable information [illegible] that the Browns' little baby was dead?"

"Yes, dear, I heard of it. Aren't you sorry?"

"Yes, but papa, it was only three days old."

"I know, dear."

"And now you think God will be [illegible] it come back [illegible]

GOOD-BYE MELODRAMA! NO MORE THRILLERS, IS VERDICT AT THE GRAND

Manager Magee Announces That His Theatre Will Play Only Better Class Shows During the Coming Season—Six Hundred Thousand Persons Attended Castle Square Past Thirty-five Weeks of Stock Plays.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

[illegible] Walker Mage[illegible], promoter of dramatic [illegible] and conflagration at popular pri[illegible] the positive [illegible] on at the Grand Opera House will be utterly lacking in Theodor Kremer thrills. In plain, first primer English, melodrama is dead—deader than Marine Park in January. No longer will "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model" fill your young heart with throbbing sympathy; no longer will "The Queen of the Harem" lead you into dangerous territory. The last sad rites have been [illegible] and Nellie is washing dishes again, while the harem's charming [illegible] former[illegible] and is now doing settlement work.

[illegible] say it looks if you accept Mr. Magee's modest announcement regarding the future at the Grand Opera House. The decline of melodrama may be traced to the opening of the first moving picture house, and in the picture houses you will find the only survivors of the drama of thrills and sensation.

Popular priced melodrama died hard, but it died steadily. For two years it has walked hand in hand with the corner, and every week brought it nearer its inevitable finish. With the growing popularity of motion picture theatre, the gallery business in the theatres devoted to melodrama began to shrink, until it became nothing but a memory of past glories. With the loss of its gallery business melodrama was doomed and two disastrous seasons put on the final and deadly touch.

MOVING PICTURES SOUND DEATH-KNELL.

A year ago the popular-priced melodramatic houses in New York, with one exception, fell by the wayside, and returned to prosperity only through moving picture films, and the announcement of Mr. Magee that next season the Grand Opera House will only play attractions that usually are seen in the one-dollar houses may be taken as a warning to seekers after thrills that there will be nothing doing in the South End. The ban on melodrama will not affect the few skillfully written plays that have genuine dramatic quality, but it does remove those plays that we have often suspected were written with a hammer and a box of nails.

[illegible] awful, that be are still forty or fifty picture houses where bloodshed and murder can be seen every hour at ten cents a head. Crime is cheap.

* * * * * * *

[illegible] for its dullness and [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] Square Theatre, Mr. Craig [illegible] Ophelia [illegible] former stock conditions would have been withheld from the public at stock prices because managers of the past would not assume the risk of failure in pieces that demanded excessive royalties, but he has produced at least two plays that had never been acted before upon any stage.

Mr. Craig may take genuine pride in his work of the last thirty-five weeks. No greater authority on Shakespearean plays than Ben Greet told me that Mr. Craig's production of "Hamlet" was the best he had ever seen, and Mr. Craig's original production of "The Spitfire" seemed sufficiently important [illegible] other New York production to warrant the [illegible] Mr. Craig, in a [illegible] magazine article paid tribute to the loyalty of his big audiences, and the figures he quoted were astounding. He said:

CRAIG TELLS OF STOCK COMPANIES.

"The loyalty of the Castle Square audiences at a stock company theatre is something to be heralded at. Week in and week out, for more than forty weeks during the year, the number of people visiting the Castle Square Theatre reach or exceed the number of 15,000, or a total of 600,000 for the season.

"Boston is a large city, to be sure, for with its suburbs, its population is over a million. But on the other hand, its playhouses and other places of entertainment are very numerous, and there is a division of interest that naturally keeps the stream from flowing in one particular direction. Yet is it not extremely noteworthy that 15,000 people have an enthusiasm and liking for a certain group of players each week that will draw them again and again to see them in whatever play they may be presenting? As a fact, there are no stock houses that never know a lean week, while there are few combination theatres (houses that play travelling companies) that can boast of uninterrupted prosperity. From season to season the stock company certainly has the best of the bargain as far as public approval and financial income are concerned."

And Mr. Craig is equally confident of the future, for in the same article he said:

"It is significant that the modern stock company is gradually extending its scope. Other managers and myself have recently produced new plays, something that was unknown in a stock company house a few years ago. It took considerable courage to do it, for our most successful plays had always been those that were the best known, and the reputation of a familiar play was invariably sought rather than the uncertainty of novelty.

"In time it is possible that the new play will be the feature, with the old play as the standby upon which to fall back, but at any rate there is no questionable that the stock company theatre is an accomplished fact. It has come to stay. It has a mission to perform. Its purpose is to give good plays well acted, and to offer the public both the good plays and the good acting at reasonable charges."

MISS HUNT IN "GREAT DIVIDE."

Miss Charlotte Hunt and her company at the Majestic Theatre will venture into new fields to-morrow evening. "The Great Divide" will give Miss Hunt an opportunity to practice quiet sobbing as Ruth Jordan, and it is expected that she will rise to the occasion. To be sure, Ruth is not a type-winning as Camille, whom Miss Hunt is announced to show you on May 30, but she will do well enough, thank you.

In "The Great Divide," William Vaughn Moody has given us a man's idea of the complicated mechanism of a woman's mind, and he has probably come as close to it as any man ever will. A woman may be bought—indeed she often is—but before a man can be the master, if he really ever reaches that domestic pinnacle, the woman must be willing to give him ownership of her soul. She herself must place the yoke upon her shoulders—the collar around her neck. This is not only of the Puritan, of which Class Ruth Jordan is a specimen—but of every woman; and it is in this subtle, curiously involved working of the feminine mind that the author of "The Great Divide" has attempted to analyse. Even if he has not quite succeeded he has gone a long way toward success.

William Morris promises another sensation at the American Music Hall this week in Cissie Curlette, a singer of songs, who is expected to put Vesta Victoria, Lucy Weston and the rest of 'em back into the amateur ranks. Miss Curlette is one of Mr. Morris' European finds, who began her stage career as an imitator of birds and animals. From that she turned singer, adding a liveliness to her songs that brought her considerable attention. Her first appearance in New York stamped her as a success, and you may look for several surprises in her work here at the American.

Keith's Theatre.

With the Boston theatres one after another either closing or going into pictures, Keith's continues to go on its way, giving every week more first-class acts than at the height of the season.

Mr. Craig may take genuine pride in his work of the last thirty-five weeks. No greater authority on Shakespearean plays than Ben Greet told me that Mr. Craig's production of "Hamlet" was the best he had ever seen, and Mr. Craig's original production of "The Spitfire" seemed sufficiently important [illegible] other New York production to warrant the [illegible] Mr. Craig, in a [illegible] magazine article paid tribute to the loyalty of his big audiences, and the figures he quoted were astounding. SMART SET WOOING SLENDER GRACE BY OUTINGS IN WOODS

Barefoot Walks Are Planned as Features of the Early Summer Before the Rounds of Gayety at the Beach Resorts Begin—Many Weddings of May and June Are Tea-cup Topics of Interesting Gossip.

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT

"BACK to the woods," is the slogan of smart society, which tired of the ceaseless round of perfunctory entertainments, dinners and luncheons, is hieing itself to country homes, finding rest and diversion in the heart of the woods—the real rest resorts these days of the ultra-fashionables.

It is at this time and in these places that the socially fagged who are not seeking change across the seas are finding the relaxation and real rest which prepares them for the strenuous pace of Vanity Fair a few weeks later at the seashore and mountain resorts.

But even though they are out "far from the madding crowds" they're not idle, these fashion-wearied mortals. They're making every moment count for their mental and physical improvement. They are up with the lark each day and out for a hike. Far up into the country these dulled and enuied fashion-folk tramp far out from all signs of civilization into the simple life.

Motor cars and carriages have for the nonce been abandoned and instead of whizzing—deaf and blind to all nature's beauties—over the well-oiled roads they are literally "taking to the woods" to walk and walk and walk and incidentally commune with nature which they have so long neglected.

They have reached the very limits of culture and the tide has turned taking them back through the whole circle of social evolution to Father Adam who strolled one Spring morning out of Paradise. But instead of strolling out they are strolling in, for they're surely getting back, right to the very heart of nature.

It is said that when the weather grows sufficiently warm shoes are to be doffed and barefoot hikes, a la Indian, will be the latest cry of fashion. Of course there are reasons for this sudden reversion to the simple life, and one is said to be the craze for the slender, girlish-like figure so much admired and absolutely necessary for the woman of fashion who must daily wriggle into the newest in gowns and not in the slightest degree look pinched or pulled.

FOLLOW IN OLD INDIAN TRAILS.

The lissome Indian maid is the ideal, and it's following in her trail to the tune of the morning chorals of the birds that the maids and matrons of fashion hope to attain their end. They are the devotees of the Simple Life in pursuit of youth, health and the joy of this state.

The prospective brides, who long to be as slender and flower-like in their snowy bridal robes, are the most ardent followers of the fad and already many have been transformed from billowy to willowy proportions through its means.

There's nothing discussed anywhere these days aside from this particular fad but brides and their wedding plans and the pretty bits of gossip anent their trousseaus, their wedding gifts and so on are persistently kept afloat.

The much mooted question as to which bride is to have the most elaborate trousseau and the most costly wedding gifts is rapidly being settled by the afternoon imbibers of the "cup that cheers" as they gather about the tea tables at the various informal gatherings, and judging from latest and most authentic reports, the honors will be given to pretty Barbara Higginson, who late in the rose-month will wed the popular young clubman, Barrett Wendell, Jr.

Miss Higginson is one of the most popular girls in society and with her almost unlimited supply of devoted relatives and wealthy friends to furnish the gifts and her fond and wealthy father to produce the wherewithal for her trousseau, it naturally looks as though the forecast were a true one.

Miss Higginson, who is tall and slender and decidedly fair to look upon, is the daughter of Francis L. Higginson of Beacon street and a favorite grand-daughter of Major and Mrs. Henry L. Higginson. Miss Juliet Higginson, one of the wealthiest of our Boston society bachelor-maids, who has taken a farm unto herself and is living quite independent of the remainder of the family, is a sister and will likely be maid of honor on the memorable occasion. Miss Juliet, by the way, has just returned from an extended absence in Europe, during part of which time she was a guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, Jr. (Hetty Sargent) at their home in London.

The Wendell-Higginson marriage is to take place at the country home of the bride's father at Pride's Crossing, and according to present plans will be largely an al fresco affair.

J. A. LOWELL BLAKE BEST MAN.

Mr. Wendell's best man will be J. A. Lowell Blake. They were schoolfellows and also Harvard classmates, graduating in 1902.

Miss Higginson made her debut the same year as her sister Juliet, Miss Minna Lyman and Miss Anne Lindsay, who were then and are now among her most intimate friends. She is a prime favorite with our wealthiest society-woman-bachelor, Miss Amy Lowell, and a couple of years ago went on an extended tour through Europe with Miss Lowell and Miss Lyman. Miss Higginson was for several years one of the premiere danseuses of the Vincent Club and made one of the greatest successes. She is attractive in appearance, manner and bearing. Among the many charities in which she is actively interested is the Hawthorne Club, in which she is an efficient officer.

Mr. Wendell, who is an older son of Prof. Barrett Wendell of Harvard College and Mrs. Wendell (born Greenough), made his home with John A. Lowell Blake, before the latter's marriage and after Mrs. Blake's death again joined Mr. Blake at his Beacon street home. Mr. Wendell's brother is William G. Wendell, Harvard '09, who was one of the Beck tea hosts at his class day. Mrs. Geoffrey Wheelock and Miss Edith Wendell are the sisters. Mr. Wendell was chosen in the late Arthur Hunnewell's place on the assembly committee, which is considered a decided honor.

A June bride who has just completed her wedding plans is pretty Anita Calef, whose marriage to Francis Boardman of New York is to be celebrated in Trinity Church June 8. Following the latest edict of fashion, Miss Calef will dispense with the long list of bridesmaids, which it has been the fashion to trail with the bride to the altar, and will have but one attendant, Mr. Boardman's sister, Miss Clara Boardman, who will be maid of honor.

Bradford Boardman, Yale '05, will be his brother's best man, and the ushers will be C. Cortlandt May, Frank Brookfield, a Yale classmate '07, Edward Comstock and Richard Chisholm.

Miss Calef and her mother, who have been for some time in New York, returned to Boston Tuesday and are at their home on Beacon street, where the wedding breakfast and reception are to be held. Miss Calef, who is an exceptionally clever girl, is a member of the Vincent Club and the author of one of the plays produced by that exclusive organization some two or three years ago. Mr. Boardman is the son of Mrs. William H. Boardman (Henrietta Hall) of East Twenty-fifth street, New York, and is well known in the Boston set of younger club and varsity men. The only regret felt in the happy affair is that Boston will lose the prospective bride, as she will make her home in New York.

WEDDING OF INTEREST TO BOSTON.

One of the important weddings of the past week was that in New York last Tuesday of Miss Alice Borland, better known as Miss Elsie Borland, to Orme Wilson, Jr. The affair was of wide interest in Boston, as the family connections over here are large and fashionable and many went on to Gotham for the occasion, among them being Mrs. James Jackson, a favorite aunt of the bride, and the Misses Juliet and Barbara Higginson, her cousins. The ceremony took place in the Church of the Incarnation at 4.30 in the afternoon.

It was an unusually interesting wedding in that it brought together members of families which for generations have been in the foremost ranks of New York's society. The bride is a granddaughter of the late George Griswold Haven, and the bridegroom is a descendant of the first Pierre Lorillard, and through the Griswold family, from which he is also descended, is a distant relative of the bride.

As the guests were assembling there was a program of music with violin solos by

ELEANOR SEARS

EVELYN SEARS

SEARS is certainly a name to conjure with in Boston society, and among those who have done most to make it so are the two delightfully democratic and accomplished younger members of the clan, Miss Eleanora and Miss Evelyn. Both girls are prominent in their exclusive set and, in fact, are looked to for leadership in all matters of importance. They have the independent spirit of their ancestors, which so wonderfully fits them for generalship. They have been figuring so prominently on the tennis courts of late and doing some of the best playing witnessed at the Country Club for many seasons. Though usually opponents in the various games, no matter which wins it never in the slightest degree affects their friendship. They're cousins and the best of pals. In the photograph, which was taken especially for the Sunday American, Miss Evelyn is congratulating Miss Eleanora, who has just won the event.

South Church, assisted by the Rev. Eugene Dubois, rector of St. John's, will officiate. A special train will take the guests from Boston to Beverly Farms.

Miss Ayer is the elder daughter of Mr and Mrs. Frederick Ayer, of Commonwealth avenue. She will be attended by her younger sister, Miss Katherine Ayer, who is to be presented next winter, as maid of honor, while her group of bridesmaids will be Miss Anne Wilson Patton, sister of the bridegroom, whose home is in San Gabriel, Cal.; Miss Helen Bedlow Longyear of Brookline, Miss Rosalind Wood, whose Winter home is in Andover, and who is at Pride's Crossing during the Summer, and Miss Katherine Banning of Los Angeles, a relative.

Frederick Ayer, Jr., will be the best man, and the ushers chosen are J. B. Banning, Jr., of Los Angeles, Lieutenant George Patten Brown, U. S. N., and Lieutenants Philip Gage, Stanley Rumbaugh, Francis Delano and James Brice, U. S. A. The reception following the ceremony will take place at "Avalon," the beautiful Summer home of the Ayers at Pride's Crossing. Assisting the young couple in receiving will be Mr. and Mrs. Ayer, Mr and Mrs. George S. Patton and the latter's sister, Miss Wilson, Lieutenant Patton is of the Fifteenth United States Cavalry, stationed at Fort Sheridan, and it is there the young couple will make their home.

Never in its social history has Boston had so many May weddings to record as this year, which goes to prove that superstition figures but little in the plans of the independence-loving society girl of to-

Her attendants were her sister, Miss Alice Borland, Miss Lelia Ingersoll Haven, her cousin, Miss Helen Coster, a cousin of Mr. Pell, and Miss Priscilla Stanton. They wore effective costumes of sunset pink satin, veiled with apricot chiffon, and hats of yellow straw, topped with long pink ostrich plumes. They carried large clusters of sunset roses.

Orme Wilson, Jr., who is to marry Miss Alice Borland on June 8, Morton Newhall and Charles Leonard. The Rev. Dr. William M. Greenough, rector of the church, and the Rev. Dr. Olmsted officiated.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Borland, No. 116 East Thirty-seventh street. A buffet luncheon was served in a room built for the occasion and panelled with old tapestries.

Invited to the Wedding.

Among those invited were:

Mr. and Mrs. George Griswold Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wood Reed Haven, Miss Antoinette Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Vail Standish, Mrs. Charles Forsyth Wetherill, Mrs. Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen, Mrs. Henry Winthrop Gray, Miss Lucy Frelinghuysen, Miss Schuyler Van Rensselaer, Mr. and Mrs. Harold de Rasaloff, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert O. The most interesting near-at-hand wedding on the topic just now is that of Miss Beatrice Banning Ayer and George Smith Patton, Jr., which is to take place at St. John's Church, Beverly Farms, next Thursday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon of the New Old

8/22/10 NOW

It may tick and may tock,
But the beat of the clock
Counts one wonder minute
With more fortune in it
Than all of the rest of them—
Don't miss the best of them.
The right time for you
To get busy and do
And carry things through
Is now. Don't delay;
Make the most of today.
Tomorrow will always keep out of your way.
No man ever caught it,
Although all have sought it
In vain through the ages.
The dullards and sages
Alike have essayed it,
But never yet made it.
The future's a gamble—
Don't fumble and ramble,
But pitch in and scramble
Straight into the thick of things;
You'll learn the trick of things
Only through trying.

ROYAL WORCESTER NON-RUSTABLE CORSETS

Fit, Wear, Satisfy and Insure You Against Corset Troubles.

THE most potent charm of womanly beauty is a PERFECT FIGURE attained only through wearing a perfect corset correctly fitted.

enhance and beautify every figure, moulding the form until it assumes the graceful and symmetrical lines of the ideal. All this and more is accomplished with ease and fully in accord with the laws of health and hygiene.

Ill-fitting, poorly-made corsets destroy the very charms which nature intended should be emphasized, and many a fine figure has been marred by lack of attention to that most important factor, the correct corset and how to wear it. Ask your corsetiere to assist you.

ROYAL WORCESTER CORSETS are the short cut to the fashionable figure of the moment. Try a pair and banish all your corset troubles.

Send for our 1910 Corset Catalogue, The Royal Blue Book

SOLD BY LEADING DEALERS $1 TO $3
If you cannot procure the model desired we will direct you to nearest dealer, or send postpaid on receipt of price.

"NEW ENGLAND'S GREAT CASH HOUSE."

Girls Who Work

are exposed to the dangers of female organic disease. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has enabled thousands of girls to hold their positions.

Read what these girls say:

Phila., Pa. "I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier saved my life. When I was 14 years old I was regular and then it went away for a long time. I went to many doctors but none helped me, so I wrote to you for advice and followed your directions. I took the Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and now I am strong and healthy again. I cannot express my gratitude to you." — Lizzie Weber, 4152 N. Fairhill St., Phila., Pa.

Cleveland, Ohio. — "Having suffered for five long years with suppression and great pain every month, spending big money for doctors and getting no cure, I at last went to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine with little hope, but found just what I needed. To-day I am regular and have no pain, thanks to your advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Lizzie Steiger, 5510 Fleet Ave., S. E., Cleveland, Ohio.

Is it not reasonable to suppose that a medicine that did so much for these girls will do the same for any other girl who is suffering with the same troubles?

These testimonial letters are the genuine and truthful statements from honest people.

Does it not seem the only sensible thing to give such a medicine at least a trial? You may be sure that it can do you no harm, and there is lots of proof that it will do you much good.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

HAIL—ALL HAIL TO THE FLAG

The Boston American's Flag Department stands ready to place this magnificent specimen of "OLD GLORY" into the homes of all New England. This Flag is a 5-foot house design—made of fine woven soft bunting—sewed stripes—fast colors.

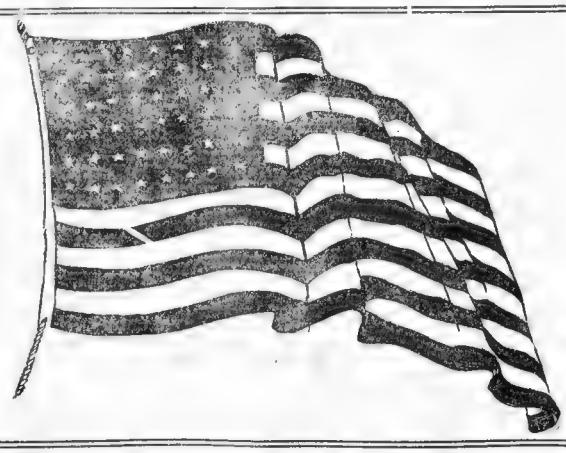
DESCRIPTION OF THE FLAG

Five feet long by three feet wide. Not the cheap glazed printed kind, but warranted fast colors woven into the cloth.

Guaranteed to stand wind, weather and rain. Stripes are sewed throughout with two rows of stitching in hem, with fastened corners.

End of flag has heavy canvas band with large brass grommets for rope.

Retail value $1.50.



How to Get One

Simply clip the FLAG Coupon on Page 2 from the Daily and Sunday

American

save them until you have seven (7) of consecutive dates, send them, together with 35 cents to cover the expense of handling, freight and mail charges, and we will immediately forward one to you.

That's the Whole Story

You'll want just such a flag as this to display from the porch or windows of your home many times every year. Get one now for Decoration Day, Bunker Hill Day, the Fourth of July and national holidays.

YOU HAVE A NEW CHANCE EVERY DAY—By HERBERT KAUFMAN

There's room for you and need of you. Nothing has been too well done. Conditions change their mind every day. This old world forever keeps joggling around, upsetting itself—forming new combinations—forgetting old ones.

No matter what happened to you yesterday, the outlook has altered. Somewhere, something has changed. Someone has dropped out of the ranks. A new lock was put on an old door; your ability may be the key to fit it.

Ten years ago, the deserts seemed eternally hopeless wastes, but between a sundown and a sunup, a dreamer figured how to bring the distant rivers to the arid sands, and a million acres of farms sprang into being.

Within your memory, a chemist was struck with the notion that coal tar was worth investigation, and the idea furnished seed for a thousand new industries.

Twenty years after the first motor car sputtered and stuttered and jerked along, a billion dollars have gone into factories—a hundred thousand mechanics have found employment at machine and lathe and foundry.

On every block there is at least one man who is making good because he used his eyes for opportunity and not for tears.

With strength and vitality and honor, success is a mere matter of ambition and patience.

No able-bodied man is ever handicapped except by his own faults and weaknesses.

Your birth has no bearing upon your career. Silken cradle robes do not always stretch into silk smoking gowns. The golden spoon does not guarantee a golden noon.

A ditch digger is managing the biggest subway under earth. Immigrant boys are making laws in the Senate. Ex-laborers are fixing the price of the world's steel. Former bank runners are re-coloring the financial map.

They didn't wait for something to "turn up"—they turned themselves into human plows and dug into fallow fields.

They had many set-backs—but they kept trying. They fell down and barked the shin of hope—but got up again.

They sprained their confidence, but went on despite its limp—they were hungry, but their appetite for work was even stronger than that for food.

You can't have their share unless you pay your share. It isn't what you are, but what you do. Get an idea and then get back of it.

Think and plan. Hunt out a duty and hunt it down. What if you do grow tired—it's a sign that your muscles are busying themselves and growing.

What if you do wear blisters on your hands—a blister after awhile turns into a protecting callous.

What if you do become weary—weariness simply indicates that your brain is tugging at its tasks—opening up new convolutions—clearing the track for quicker and better thought.

What can you do? We don't know and we can't tell where you belong until you show your belongings. Pick your pace and place—back them up or back out.

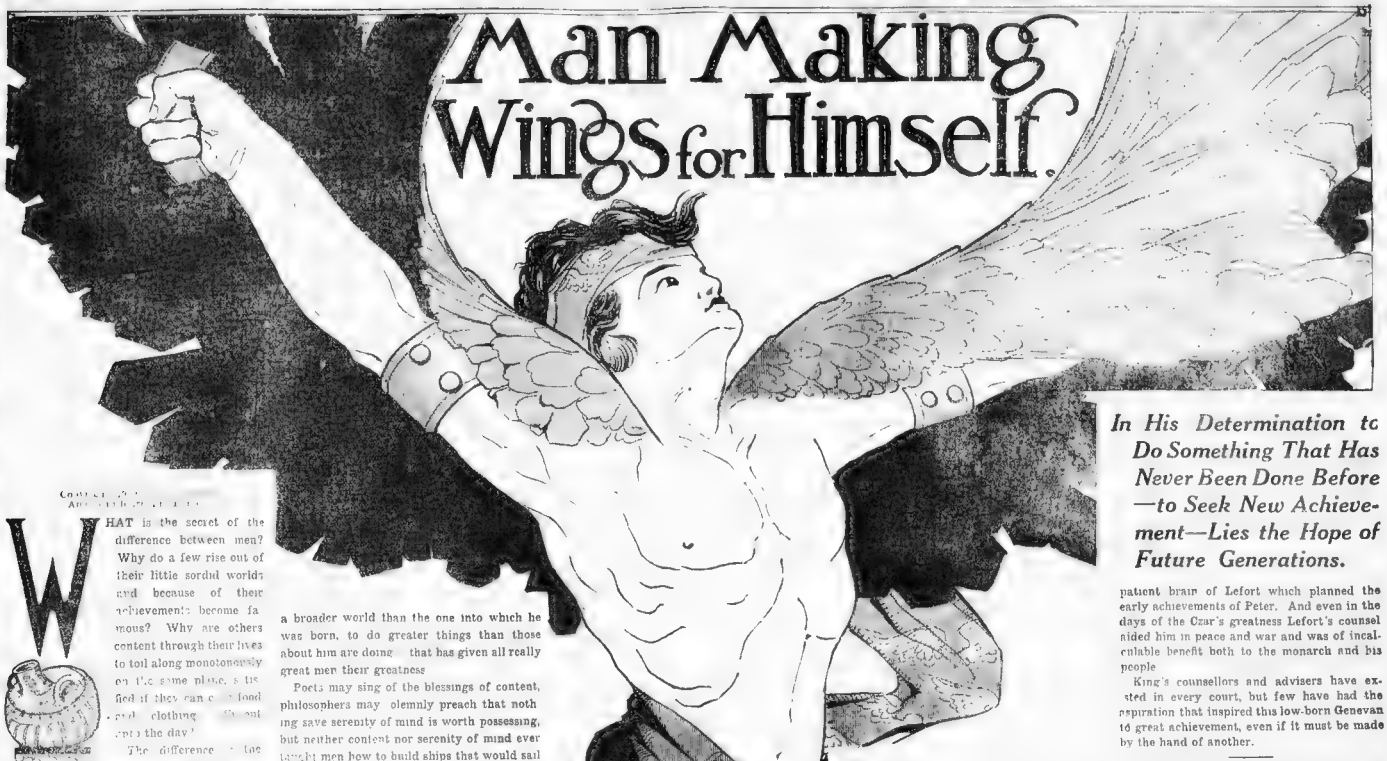
Man Making Wings for Himself.



In His Determination to Do Something That Has Never Been Done Before —to Seek New Achievement—Lies the Hope of Future Generations.

WHAT is the secret of the difference between men? Why do a few rise out of their little sordid worlds and because of their achievements become famous? Why are others content through their lives to toil along monotonously on the same plane, satisfied if they can get food and clothing [illegible] until the day?

The difference [illegible] is that quality of character that makes, [illegible] noble, creature than the [illegible] ASPIRATION.

The ape, with [illegible] could hardly be recognized [illegible] man [illegible] the two to be [illegible] remains [illegible] tions. The [illegible] the earth shall [illegible] race—those whom [illegible] —will always develop faster than their fellows, often keeping many years [illegible] the thought and ideas of their time.

The difference between Servius Tullius and his commonplace [illegible] difference in aspiration. It is the difference that separates all [illegible] commonplace, workaday [illegible]

Since the beginning of history man has been making wings for himself. In the people to-day for the mastery of the air we see evidence of his ambition to do something new, to accomplish something that has never been accomplished before. This desire has lifted the race up out of savagery. It has given to it the mastery over all the other creatures of the earth. And in turn it will give him mastery over himself, and then will come the dawn of that perfect civilization toward which he has been striving since he first walked erect upon the face of the earth.

Aspiration—the desire to rise, to live in a broader world than the one into which he was born, to do greater things than those about him are doing—that has given all really great men their greatness.

Poets may sing of the blessings of content, philosophers may solemnly preach that nothing save serenity of mind is worth possessing, but neither content nor serenity of mind ever taught men how to build ships that would sail over the seas, or exchange their dank, unwholesome caves for habitable dwelling places.

Omar's definition of sufficient paradise was "a book of verses underneath a bough, a loaf of bread" and a comely Persian maiden to sing to him in the wilderness. It makes pretty poetry, but a world peopled with tippling, lazy, contented Omar Khayyams would never have got beyond the stage of development when the tent was good enough for a dwelling place and the camel a sufficient means of locomotion.

Long before Omar, who lived in what was then an advanced civilization, sang his song in praise of wine, Alfred, among the barbarians in his island, had united all England under one government, formed an army that was adequate to protect it against the invading Danes, established a wise system of laws and surrounded himself with writing and thinking men, as well as with men of action.

Alfred was a man of aspiration. Surrounded by savage enemies and governing an equally savage people, he was not content to surround himself with a little band of retainers and retire to the security of some retreat. He realized that he could make the world better, that man was meant for higher things than continual warring and quarrelling, and he devoted his unusually great talents to establishing a peace, which enabled literature to flourish and gave to England its first importance as a nation.

The patience with which this great man carried out his noble plans has been an inspiring lesson through succeeding history. Foreseeing that only peace could bring his people ultimate happiness and prosperity, and that there could be no peace while hordes of warlike Danes were swarming to his shores with every favoring wind, he set carefully about the work of preparing for war. Defeat only served to teach him how to gain victory in the next battle. Often routed, driven into the swamps by his enemies, he patiently and cheerfully laid new plans, organized new armies and led them to final victory. Always before his mind was the hope of what he could accomplish when the country was freed from the invader, and that hope gave him strength to suffer defeat without abandoning the struggle and supplied him with the courage and determination that was the inspiration of his followers.

King Alfred made wings for himself and his people. He found England a country of wrangling, squabbling savages. He left it a nation, united, peaceful and enjoying a system of laws many of which endure to the present day. The rulers that have followed him in England have had far greater opportunities to serve their countrymen and the world, yet none of them holds or deserves so high a place in the regard of the students of history.

When Peter the Great was struggling for the crown of Russia against an intriguing family there was at his court a Genevan named Lefort, a man who could never hope for a crown, but who, nevertheless, had an insatiable thirst for power and a limitless ambition to soar above his fellow men.

Lefort found in Peter a fiery tempered, domineering lad, whose education had been neglected, and whose only strength lay in his masterful character.

The ambitious Genevan took this boy in hand, taught him all he knew of the arts and sciences, made him understand that Russia was far behind the rest of the world in every thing that made a nation great and inspired him with a fierce desire to learn.

Peter's half sister, the regent, believing that the Genevan tutor was merely keeping the young prince busy with ordinary military instruction, paid little attention to him till, inspired by Lefort, the boy made up his mind to elevate Russia to an equal place among the nations and organized an army, which enabled him to seize the throne.

The story of his subsequent success is well known. Always following the advice of his quiet, ambitious teacher, Peter labored earnestly in building up his army and navy, even abandoning for a time his throne to work as a common laborer in a Dutch shipyard that he might gain an intimate knowledge of ship building.

When he returned to Russia with Lefort he had visited many European countries and amassed a fund of knowledge which he put to good use on his return to his throne.

At last, victorious in his long wars with Sweden, Peter retired to his capital, devoting his remaining years not to the oppression and robbery of his subjects, as has been the custom of his successors, but to the beautifying and improvement of his capital and the education of his people.

It was the ambition of Lefort, the Genevan which, communicated to the hot tempered prince, made him a noble, enlightened monarch instead of a brutal tyrant. It was the patient brain of Lefort which planned the early achievements of Peter. And even in the days of the Czar's greatness Lefort's counsel aided him in peace and war and was of incalculable benefit both to the monarch and his people.

Kings, counsellors and advisers have existed in every court, but few have had the aspiration that inspired this low-born Genevan to great achievement, even if it must be made by the hand of another.

Tedious, discouraging, often seemingly impossible is the task of rising above our own little world.

To the bookkeeper who works into the night to find an elusive trial balance, it seems as if never would there be time to learn any trade but that of bookkeeping.

To the machinist standing at his lathe, watching the chisels shave tiny slivers from a steel shaft, there seems no chance of learning any better paid trade than his own. For at least eight hours a day he must tend that one lathe, knowing nothing, in all probability, of the use which the shaft it is turning is to be put when it leaves his hands.

But a good many men who are now very much looked up to by the world began life hunting trial balances, and yet their ambition found the time to found big business careers on the credit and debit sides of their ledgers.

And if you go to the Engineers' Club in New York, where the men who design locomotives and battleships and build bridges and skyscrapers gather together to talk shop, you will discover that more than one of them began life in a machine shop and had to work a good many years before they were ever permitted to stand beside a lathe.

Man is still building wings for himself with which to fly out of his present surroundings. The start at a mastery of the air which we now see in the daily improving records of aeroplanes is only a start, yet it has been more than a century since the first balloon sailed above the surface of the earth and many centuries since the little Chinese boys were taught to fly kites by their silk-trousered fathers.

A point on first, the patience, continued, unremitting patience, is necessary to any accomplishment.

For every one it is possible to aspire, to WANT to do something that will bring fortune and fame. But only to those who have the patience and industry to master their ambition is possible any actual accomplishment.

An old German music master said to his pupil:

"It is not enough for you to say, 'I want to be a great performer.' It is not enough that you have decided to be a great performer. I will help you in all you sit down to the keyboard and practice, and practice, and practice. I think your fingers are already [illegible] hands."

As in every [illegible] of nature makes every man [illegible] Were all the world content [illegible] no wing-building, no hope [illegible] in the future than is to [illegible] can.

[illegible] which is content with wishing for wings is not aspiration at all. It is the desire for achievement that is so great that it takes no obstacle into account, however formidable it may seem, that really lifts a man out of his environment and carries him above the dead level of mediocrity.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes direct to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvet softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, as directed, and if there is a single hair left on the head it will be sufficient to complete its growth.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation for regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined

FREE To show how quickly Danderine does its work, I send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to-day.

Edna May's Little Sister

Such a problem for her—Will she Stay on the Stage or Choose the Rich Nobleman her Proud Sister-in-Law is anxious to have her Marry?

MISS CHARLES HENRY.—MISS MAY'S SISTER-IN-LAW WHO WOULD RATHER HAVE HER MARRY A RICH TITLE.

ANOTHER POSE OF MISS MAY.

London, May 8.

EDNA MAY'S little sister, Marguerite, has just made her debut in London in "The Dollar Princess." The question which is interesting and amusing London society now is how long Edna May's little sister will stay on the stage, particularly when there was so much influence brought to bear to keep her from going on and there is so much influence to take her off.

Of course, every one remembers how Edna May, one of the most beautiful of American actresses, married Mr Oscar Lewisohn after a thrilling automobile romance. Mr Lewisohn's sister is Mrs. Charles Henry, a leader of society in London, and wife of a prominent member of Parliament. At first Mrs. Henry couldn't be reconciled to the fact that her brother's wife had been on the stage. She even snubbed her quite vigorously.

But when the new Mrs. Lewisohn made friends with Mrs. Kepple, the King's confidante, and with the Cassells, who make the King's money for him by giving him tips on stock, and when finally she met the King himself and became one of the most charming and popular hostesses in London, Mrs. Henry forgot her prejudices and welcomed Mrs Lewisohn with open arms.

Now, it happens that little sister Marguerite was taken to Europe eight years ago by Edna and her mother; was sent to the finest private schools in London and Launne, Switzerland, and became very highly accomplished, speaking French, German and Italian as fluently as English, and secured a very fine musical training. Marguerite worshipped her sister and learned every one of her roles. When Edna May left the stage to become Mrs. Lewisohn little Marguerite was quite an accomplished actress.

"I am tired of doing nothing," she complained a few months ago. "I have a voice, Edna has taught me well, and why should I not make a success on the stage?"

She communicated her ideas to Mrs. Oscar Lewisohn. She had no prejudices.

"Why, of course," she said, "I think that would be fine for you."

So Miss Marguerite was given the part of Sadie Von Tromp in "The Dollar Princess."

Mrs Henry didn't like this a bit. It was quite true that none of her friends seemed to think that her eldest sister-in-law had suffered any by being on the stage, but, then, she is off it now. And here was the other sister-in-law beginning it over again.

Who Are the White Indians?

By MAJOR P. H. FAWCETT (Fellow Royal Geographical Society.)

READERS of Prescott's "History of the Conquest of Peru" may recall that in 1541 Gonzalo Pizarro, the Viceroy of Quito, set out over the Cordilleras with 350 Spaniards and 4000 Indians on his famous journey to the Amazon, lured on by the tale of 270 of the former and some 2,000 of the latter by the rumors of a strange Indian civilization which, like the Wasp perpetually mocked his

Mrs. Henry expostulated: "Why, Marguerite is accomplished enough and pretty enough to marry the finest, richest man in England."

But I don't know any fine rich men," said Miss Marguerite. "Besides, what I want is to make a career for myself. I think that I will be a very good actress some day."

"But would you leave the stage if you met some fine, rich nobleman?" asked Mrs. Henry.

"If I loved him, yes. I suppose I would," said Miss Marguerite.

And now Mrs. Henry began very busily indeed to find such a match for Marguerite as she thought a girl of her beauty and charm should make. She had invitations to dinners and receptions and balls, and she took Marguerite to all of them. Marguerite was a success wherever she went. Men were attracted by her beauty and her charm, and they were interested in her because she was a stage celebrity. But Marguerite was not interested in any of them. She was interested in Jack Hamilton, and Jack Hamilton was interested in her.

"Marguerite," he said to her one day, "I am going to do that in a few years, anyway, and then I am going to ask you to marry me. Will you wait for me?"

"Yes, Jack," she answered, "I will wait for you."

"Then I shall start on the stage," he said.

MANY artists are certainly not as bad as their paintings, but are all artists really as bad as they are painted?

A Celatine Juliet or a Moving Picture Heartbreaker.

Why Celatine? Because That's What the Films Are Made of. Why Juliet? Because

The mesmeric eyes of Miss Turner, effective in all poses.

All the Floating Romeos Fall in Love With Her. The Odd Romance of the Cinematograph Star Who Receives 500 Proposals a Month

By Miss Florence Turner.

The persecuted Countess — "I spurn your love"—worth 50 proposals week.

THE footlight favorite as a heartbreaker will have to yield the palm to the moving picture star. No actress, however gifted she may be, no prima donna, however entrancing, ever made as many conquests throughout her whole captivating career as a leading lady of a moving picture company scores in a single month.

This may at first sight seem an extravagant assertion, but the figures will appear unquestionable when the story of Miss Florence Turner's unique celebrity is told. Turner is the typical celebrity of the cinematograph, and demonstrates its power.

There are very few [illegible] who have not heard of Miss Turner, the lady whose name is [illegible] on the lips of Mayfair and Belgravia as well as in the suburbs and the provinces. In the second place, the actress on the boards was to her thousands where the moving picture star is to her millions. Again, the footlight actress is often seen playing in the same piece at a single theatre for months, whereas the moving picture actress appears before her audiences in different pieces at different theatres in a single week. In the third place, the popularity of the footlight actress is limited to the number of seats in the theatre, whereas the popularity of the moving picture actress is practically unlimited.

It is true that, in addition to seeing the act, the audience of the regular actress hears her voice as well, whereas the moving picture hero or heroine can make an appeal to the lonely [illegible] with the mere appeal of her performance, but the experience of Miss Turner would seem to indicate that this fact only increases her fascination and arouses even greater yearnings in the breasts of her admirers.

The Sailor's Sweetheart — "I know he will return to me."—25 proposals

The Cavalier's Heroic Wife—"I must save my children."—10 proposals.

It must be remembered that if all the audiences ever played to by all the leading ladies that ever scored a hit were to be combined, they wouldn't equal the multitudes who view and applaud Miss Turner every night. As the heroine of a thousand different dramas, she plays to a hundred million people a day! Not only in America, but in Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy, Java, New Zealand, Russia, China and many other foreign countries the little dark-haired girl of Miss Turner is only twenty-three) is daily breaking the hearts of old and young. Doctors and plumbers, millionaires and store clerks, counts and judges, high school boys and octogenarians, fall victims to her charm and prettiness which they have seen only through the medium of the films. Miss Turner without question the most proposed young woman in America.

In what shape do the proposals come? [illegible] Romeos can't wait [illegible] for their heroine to appear, or if they did, they would waste a lot of valuable time. Instead they have to resort to all sorts of ingenious schemes to ascertain the girl's identity and then court her by mail. That is why three letter-carriers on Miss Turner's route consigned within three months every day she receives a dozen or more letters addressed in a dozen different ways, one of the more successful having only the words "Miss Turner, England" on the envelope. These letters are made up of [illegible] by devious paths managed to secure her address, and address her accordingly. Some of the films proved more than [illegible] to her, and on an average of [illegible] per week. The [illegible] proposals during the year [illegible] no less than five hundred proposals.

The Kidnapped Shop Girl—"Now you are in my power."—Good for 100 proposals a month

The majority have to be content with [illegible] certain way of reaching her. Their letters are addressed to The lady who played Mary in "Keeping Up Appearances," "The Flower Girl and the Fiddler," and are sent in care of the [illegible] theatre where they are first [illegible]

While "The Mexican Coquette" brought thirty, "Very Hard Luck" on the other hand, in which Miss Turner's identity was lost to a great extent by her make-up, fell flat.

The record was established by "The Kidnapped Shop Girl," in which sympathy for the heroine was doubled because for the [illegible] portion of the film she was [illegible] and [illegible] received.

So, again [illegible] the moving pictures taken away one of the prerogatives of the theatre.

The Mexican Coquette. Always good for 30 proposals a week.

Very Hard Luck—"We will starve together, dear." Not proposal-stimulating. Too much made up.

The cruel Stepmother — "Never let me see your face again."—Very good

If I had [illegible] in search of a husband the last occupation I would have chosen would have been a position in a moving-picture stock company. How could a girl more effectually lose her identity, I would have reasoned then by transforming herself into a picture?

But though I wasn't looking for a husband, and that phase of the question didn't interest me, I became a moving picture heroine some three years ago. My experience was then and there enlarged me that I might have been my own agent, I should have acted differently. In three years I have received over three thousand proposals, and [illegible] never [illegible] [illegible] in any other way. Not one of them has ever touched my heart. The sound of love's voice [illegible]

I have I ever responded to their ardent effusions knowingly, although on one occasion I did so as the result of a trick.

The wooer in this case was a [illegible] who wrote to me as follows.

The Faithful Servant—"He died to save me." Very effective—45 proposals

"Always your [illegible]"

Of course, he got no response. A few days later I received another letter which was as follows:

"Dear Miss Turner, Lady [illegible] you will pardon this presumption, but I am [illegible] with a big grief. I have admired you so long from [illegible] seen you in the pictures that I feel I must write and tell you how much pleasure you are constantly giving us.

"We all think you're [illegible] and if we could [illegible] just a few lines from you [illegible] it would know the [illegible] It would [illegible]

"With best [illegible] may continue to [illegible] am, sincerely [illegible]

"Dear, Dear Little Lady — I have head from you and I am happy! Let [illegible] Then came the revelation [illegible]

"Dear Miss Turner—I am not going to apologize for writing this, because we are not strangers, despite the fact that you have never so much as heard my name. I have followed you in the moving picture films night after night, I have admired the grace and beauty of your every move and gesture, and I have adored you yourself. Though I have never been all surprised to hear that it [illegible] tables [illegible] a proposal.

The [illegible] of it was rather interesting. [illegible] I am getting more or less used to it. Occasionally I receive a proposal more ardent than the rest, or a source more unusual which proves interest for the time being, but the sameness which characterizes the majority of my wooers has taken the edge off their appeals of replying with a few lines.

"Dear Miss Turner—I am not going to apologize for writing this, because we are not strangers, despite the fact that you have never so much as heard my name. I have followed you in the moving picture films night after night, I have admired the grace and beauty of your every move and gesture, and I have adored you yourself. Though I have never met you, I feel that I know you intimately, and I am sure that you will understand me when I say that I love you, and with love there is no [illegible] So be charitable, and [illegible] with sympathy and [illegible] I hear from you. Ever yours

I [illegible] him no reply, and his letters ceased, although I still receive an occasional [illegible] card from him.

The most interesting phase of the whole [illegible] is that a few films in which I appear [illegible] so many [illegible] proposals as others. For instance, [illegible] caused by some dog-[illegible] and one [illegible] in which I [illegible] months after to save me from [illegible] was [illegible] by mistake for, when a [illegible] my father [illegible] me in the mill [illegible] for [illegible] [illegible] will offer me [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

PROFESSOR ELLIOT SMITH, of the University of Manchester, has recently made a minute examination of the mummy of Ra-Nefer, in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, England, and finds that it is the oldest specimen extant, that is, of the fourth dynasty.

The body of Ra-Nefer, a high official in the time of Seneferu (the fourth dynasty (3000 B. C.), was found by Dr. Flinders Petrie at Medum (Egypt), in 1892, and presented by him to the museum of the College of Surgeons. Although discovered so long ago it is only now that its importance has become apparent.

In the course of field work in Egypt numerous mummies belonging to a period some six centuries later than Ra-Nefer have been found, but while these are fairly well preserved, that of Ra-Nefer, as far as the internal organs are concerned, is the most perfect yet discovered.

The history of the mummy is also unique, but only because it is the oldest. Ra-Nefer was a high official and generally bore a supposed title of "Priest of Maat." He was also a "Royal Kinsman," and was evidently a man of importance, as his tomb was adorned with a number of fine statues.

Experiments in museums were often assigned to an early dynasty, but a full investigation of such specimens has continued Professor Elliot Smith, who from his long experience as anatomist is well qualified to judge, the age of mummies either late mummies or mummies referred to an early date in early tombs which had not been robbed, but only desiccated, and so preserved by natural, not artificial means.

The methods used by the embalmer of the fourth dynasty will be described by Professor Elliot Smith in a paper and publication. Meantime it may be said that the art had reached a high degree of perfection in that period. The body of Ra-Nefer is also very much made up to simulate the living, minute details of the face and body being reproduced with a delicacy that, when the critical eye of the scientific anatomist

It is fitting that this remarkable specimen should find shelter in its present abode, for the investigation of mummies during the last five years has been carried on almost entirely by surgeons. Harvey, the discoverer of the circulation, wrote on mummies in 1505 the London surgeon Granger published his famous work on mummies, with its double subject of embalming the manners and customs of the ancients and of reviving a method of embalming for use in the present.

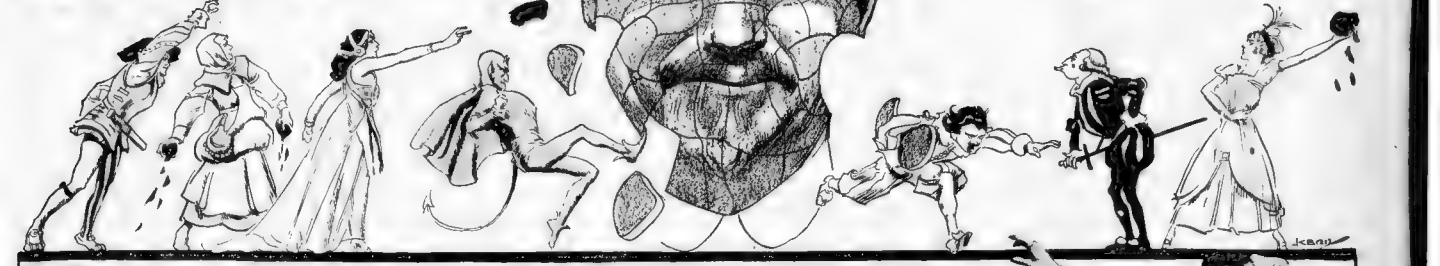
WHAT GRAND OPERA DID TO OSCAR...

Left Him $1,000,000 Winner, BUT—Kept Him for Four Years in Dreadful Mix-ups With Celebrated Song-birds, Published His Love Letters, and Smashed His Esteemed Silk Tile



"The only man that could be torn to pieces for four years and still remain recognizable."

YOU'VE all heard what Oscar Hammerstein did for grand opera—running neck and neck for four years with the fabulously capitalized Metropolitan, importing a score of first-class song birds, giving the public new and wonderful ... by the greatest composers, and d ... a row individual responsibility, at a tremendous hazard to his bank account.

Of course you're glad to know that the courageous impresario's pocket has not suffered—he is credited with relinquishing the field to the Metropolitan management somet... like $1,000,000 winner. But a man's pocket is not his only sensitive spot, and there are several things that grand opera did to Oscar that probably were rather painful at the time.

Even before he made his first bow as a grand opera impresario, in fact before the completion of his big Manhattan Opera House, he escaped with his life only by a miracle. He fell into the ... down an uncompleted ... of stairs and was picked up for dead. Probably anybody else would have been dead, but Mr. Hammerstein, having protected his head with his arms, escaped with a few bruises.

No sooner than his first successes had turned the wide world's spotlight on him did Hammerstein begin to pay a series of penalties many of them wearing a comic aspect, owing to the victim's philosophy and sense of humor—which has often led to fame brought upon him. The most exciting of these was the ... of his troubles with Miss Frances Lee, celebrated as "The Texas Patti."

Upon failing to get herself included in the list of the great new impresario's song birds, Miss Lee brought suit against him, claiming $100,000 damages, and then proceeded to publish a number of very readable love letters signed "Oscar." While Tetrazzini was charming the public at the Manhattan, which hung fire so long with much publicity before it was settled.

But who can estimate the damage caused by that European influence which caused Oscar to discard his honorable and universally venerated silk tile for the snippy gray "Fedora," in which he was welcomed back to America for the beginning of his fourth opera season? The mascot tile was sacrificed in an automobile accident.

Mr. Hammerstein himself recognized the gravity of the situation, but could do nothing to avert the consequences. His troubles with opera stars increased, reached a climax—and the season that missed the familiar, the venerable, the revered tile was the impresario's Waterloo.

It was in vain that Oscar experimented with substitute silk tiles. Their history was invariably unfortunate. One was sent rolling under profane cab wheels in Broadway in front of the Hotel Knickerbocker, when Mr. Hammerstein was suddenly attacked by ... newspaper reporters, whom he had refused ... being him ... not wisely ... successor marked his several appearances in a police court as a sequel to that disturbance.

About this time Mr. Hammerstein confessed that conspicuous success as an opera manager was not adding to his happiness.

"What," he asked, "are the elements that ... Unrest, dissatisfaction. Look at waiters. They get $1.50 a day and are happy, so they remain waiters. The satisfied man stays where he is.

Coming to what his song birds did to Oscar, here is a paragraph from the statement made by his son, Arthur, following the announcement that Mr. Hammerstein had sold to the Metropolitan people and retired from the opera field:

"The exactions of the actor, musicians and others, brought about by the rivalry between the two houses, has grown almost beyond control, and has been the occasion of such advancing prices that, notwithstanding the generous patronage accorded by the public, each of the houses has been face to face with a deficiency."

Look at what Mary Garden did to Oscar—and Oscar was as nice a man as ever ... away a few weeks ago!

"Has anybody been treated me like a chump ... of a leading lady ... may sing for him again if he so far forgets himself as ... act correctly."

And Oscar's reply: "Miss Garden owes me $4,500. I ask her to pay it and she forgets all about it. Chorus girls at least are honest."

And then there was the valedictory suit for $50,000 brought by Zenatello, the tenor, who lamented in print:

"Ah, fool that I was! I threw over the good offer from the Metropolitan and decided to sing for my good friend—ha! ha!—Hammerstein, who came to me with tears in those cold gray eyes of his, and he smiled and he said: 'Giovanni, my ... I ... with me. You shall be ... Happy with me.' ... And then he put poor, ... pages of the thousands of ... Zenatello were created with ... for that I was."

And when ... opera to be put on, and it was physically impossible for Mary Garden to sing all the principal roles as often as Mr. Hammerstein wished them sung—to please his public and bring in those necessary dollars—and he picked out Cavalieri to share the burden, what did ... Did she ... Did she ... with ... impresario with tears of gratitude in her eyes? No. The cables from Paris said she said she would ... scratch Oscar's eyes out if he put a little Italian in roles she had created.

Also there was that estimable artiste, Mme. Gerville-Reache, who declared that Mr. Hammerstein cut down her contract. "Yes, and when I went to him about it he ran—yes, ran out through the whirling door!"

What "Salome" alone did to Oscar was enough to crush an ordinary man—or, at least, to make him draw in his operatic horns. After Mary Garden, in Philadelphia, had done her little specialty with the paper mache head of John the Baptist there were thunderings from every pulpit in America. Archbishop Ryan denounced the performance. The Rev. Dr. Samuel Upchn's rebuke was gruelling. After describing the character of Christ's forerunner, the pastor said:

"We are asked, with strange, blind effrontery, to picture him not only as the victim of a woman's hatred, which he was, but as being made in death the gruesome object of a degraded woman's passion, a presumptuous and revolting fabrication of the sacred record."

And this is only a sample.

Oscar Hammerstein is as inveterate a cigar smoker as was the late Mark Twain, which is perhaps natural, as his tobacco each year ... cents has brought him millions. But he had to quit smoking them on the stage of his own opera house because Nordica had a sensitive throat.

Necessary constant rehearsals at all hours of the day and night kept the nerves of Oscar and all his people at a high tension—and Oscar couldn't afford to coddle his. Once the members of the orchestra, tired out, declared they could not rehearse another minute.

Campanini, the invaluable director, went up in the air. He shouted to his men:

"Then I'll do what I did at the Scala in Milan—pack my trunk and leave. There's a boat sails for Europe to-morrow."

He walked out of the theatre, but, fortunately into the arms of Oscar. With a thousand other worries on his mind, it was up to Oscar to fix things. This he did in a tactful speech to the tired men—and the rehearsal went on.

Throughout those four seasons the irrepressible Oscar had to keep a weather eye on affairs at the Metropolitan, whose prestige he was seriously threatening. It was a lesson in gamesmanship to note his casual meetings with Puppel, the Metropolitan manager, and the bland and courteous manner in which they endeavored to lead each other astray. Having ... Fifth avenue nor ... Street millions ... pace of him, it was a perilous thing for Oscar to be caught napping when there were world-famous singers or operas ... market.

Once across, Mr. Hammerstein's most valued song birds entered into a conspiracy to desert him. Mme. Tetrazzini, though invited, declined to join the conspirators.

Hearing of the plot barely in time, Oscar executed a masterly flank movement in a diplomatic note to each of the traitors, and also to every Italian singer in his company, except Tetrazzini and Agostinelli, he informed them that they were free to terminate their contracts if they so desired. A general panic ensued, and there was an abrupt end to the conspiracy.

When it served his purpose Oscar could be abusive with a brand of abuse as masterly as his diplomacy. Referring to the above quoted trouble with Mary Garden and Zanatello, he remarked for publication:

"Miss Mary Garden, the distinguished songbird, is a loafer. Also is Giovanni Zanatello, the talented Italian tenor, a loafer. Likewise are all sopranos and tenors and contraltos and basses of a ... grand and ... ... age, sex, or previous ... ... tude, loafers."

Upon the occasion of the director, Campanini's, resignation, both ... Mr. Hammerstein had stood with Mary Garden in keeping Cavalieri out of French opera roles. Oscar remarked in an interview:

"In making contracts with artists, I always allow ten per cent off for insanity."

In summing up what grand opera did to Oscar, the following expression from him, contained in an interview printed two years ago, seems apropos:

"When I said that a man finally reaches a time in life when nothing can hurt him if he has acquired philosophy, I forgot one thing. I will retract the general statement for the one instance. He can be hurt by the approach of old age. When I hear people call me 'the old man,' I can't describe to you how I feel—'the old man,' the term each one of us has got to hear some time. And we for four years and still be recognizable.

"England's Hobby Horse Cavalry."

NOT since the immortal Horse Marines had their inception has England been so stirred over anything as at the idea of their War Office to form new recruits on rocking horses. Scarcity of horseflesh and tenderness of the "rookie" are given as reasons for the innovation. Rudyard Kipling threatens to write a poem about it. It is not likely, however, that the United States will emulate Great Britain. It's ideas preferring from the first to become familiar with the real thing.

Consult the "Alabastine Man"

For thirty years the use of Alabastined walls has been on the increase. In the beginning the chief incentive was sanitation. Physicians demanded them because they were healthful. During late years, however, practical and artistic home decorators have learned that ideal color harmony can be best obtained through the proper application of

The Stylish Wall Tint

The Alabastine Company has spent two million dollars in educating the American public to the advantages of the Alabastined wall, and in order that the claims made by it shall not go for naught, has spent many thousands more giving home owners all over the land valuable suggestions as to how Alabastine should be used, and how the best interiors are to be secured. The result is success and the House Beautiful and Rooms Charming.

Every practical painter and decorator should be an "ALABASTINE MAN". Some are not—some talk against Alabastine—some will not try to secure proper results with it—some will claim that Alabastine and then do your work with a cheap kalsomine that rubs off—will give you what you may not detect. But the intelligent kalsomine—the "Alabastine Man"—will give you what you pay for and what you desire. The best posted decorator knows that Alabastine will give you the best results, most satisfaction and the handsomest rooms

Send for "Brush and Pail."

For the benefit and encouragement of "Alabastine Men," the Alabastine Company publishes each month an illustrative journal called "Brush and Pail." Every decorator and painter should receive this interesting publication. It will give him original ideas in treatment and splendid working suggestions. We will send it FREE to every painter who will make request for it on his own letter head or send his business card. Useless to any but practical men.

Our "Stencil Catalogue and Expert Ideas on Home Decorating" will be sent FREE to any address on request.

INCLUDING a wrapper, sacque, barra-coat and slip. The practical features of this set will at once appeal to every mother of a baby. The body portions of the garments are cut in one piece, which renders it an easy matter to quickly sew the daintie clothings, and the front closings, particularly of the sacque and barra coat, will save baby from much discomfort and inconvenience in dressing.

Cambric, long cloth, nainsook or lawn may be used for the slip and flannelette, flannelette for the barra coat, with lace or embroidery.

It will require three-eighths of a yard of 27-inch material for the sacque, 2¼ yards of 36-inch material for the slip, 2⅞ yards of 27-inch material for the wrapper, and 1⅞ yards of 44-inch material for the barra coat

PLAID gingham, with insertion for trimming and allover lace for V neck insert and cuffs, was used for this model. The design is also suitable for flouncing, for lawn or linen and other wash fabrics, while cashmere and other woolen fabrics will be equally appropriate. The panel front may be in plain or notched outline and the neck edge cut high or in V style. The pattern is cut in four sizes—4, 6, 8 and 10 years—and requires 3¾ yards of 36-inch material for the 8 year size

To obtain either of these two desirable patterns fill in the accompanying coupon and mail with 10 cents for each, in silver or stamps, to

FOXY GRANDPA & Little Brother

Foxy Grandpa Takes Little Brother for a Ride and at the Same Time Plays a Joke On the Boys.

1. GRANDPA—I see the boys down there, baby. We will play a little joke on them.

2. BOYS—Look! Why, there comes Grandpa with baby. Let's have some fun with them.

3. BOYS—Say! There's something queer-looking about that!

4. GRANDPA—Ah, there, boys!

5. GRANDPA—We will now go back.

6. GRANDPA—All right, boys. I will let you push it back as you seemed to enjoy our little joke so much.
